Time to Think.
Brains, Not Legs.
War For Whom?
Foolish Gamblers.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.)

A NEW YORK JUDGE, remanding for sentence a twenty-one-year-old burglar and hold-up man, said to him: "You will never carry a gun again as long as you live," implying that he would act upon a recent law and impose a life sentence.

Some will think the punishment severe, but it is no worse than the bandit's trade. Carrying a pistol while committing a felony means INTENTION to commit murder, if necessary.

Life sentences, without any milksop commutation for "good behavior," would make "guns" less popular with criminals.

Mr. Goldwyn, associated with Messrs. Loew and Mayer in a big moving picture company, says moving pictures now call for "less display of legs and more display of brains."

Stars must be able to THINK if they want to succeed and last, says he. "Photographs of the nude human body have gone out of fashion. Brains, not legs, count now," and that is blessed relief. Even legs pall, so much alike, especially when there is no expression in the faces that go with the legs.

A French writer, back from Japan, says there is no doubt the Japanese are preparing for a great war. He thinks the Japanese intend to make themselves in Asia what Prussia was in Europe under the Kaiser. He was startled when, in a Japanese harbor, he saw rising above the water a submarine 100 meters long, a size forbidden by the recent naval agreement. Nobody knows what the Japanese are building, out of sight in inland seas.

In America we feel sure that the Japanese, our friends, as we are their friends, and intelligent as well as friendly, would never dream of attacking the United States. At the same time we might be dragged into a war between Japan and Europe, and we ought to be ready for anything, with plenty of flying ships and submarines of our own and NOBODY TO TELL US WHAT SIZE WE MAY MAKE THEM OR HOW MANY.

Prince Nikolay von Massalsky says he has an absolutely sure plan for beating a roulette wheel and getting money from gambling houses, if they would only let him out of jail to try it.

He could not possibly "beat" the gambling wheel, even in Monte Carlo, where they have

FIND LOST BOY CUT AND BLEEDING, BUT TOTING DOG TOO TIRED TO TROT

Plymouth, N. H., Aug. 13.—With his body bleeding from cuts and scratches, but clutching his exhausted little spaniel tight to his breast, Ernest Houghland, 15-year-old Waltham, Mass., boy, today staggered from the mountains at Rumney, after having been lost in the wilds for two days.

The boy, after attracting the attention of a party of searchers, had to return to the woods until clothing was secured with which to cover his torn body.

The boy, after being given something to eat, was rushed here and restored to the arms of his overjoyed parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Houghland of Mott avenue, Waltham.

While a posse of more than a hundred men and boys scoured the wilds of Plymouth mountain for the missing boy and dog, the lad and his little companion were wandering about aimlessly through the brush.

During the two days and nights they were lost in the mountains, the boy and dog lived on berries which the boy picked. They found a number of mountain streams and did not suffer from thirst.

SLEPT ON MOSS BANK.

At night the boy slept on a moss bank, with his dog clutched tightly.

GOODWIN OPENS DRIVE ON WILD MOTORCYCLES

Declaring that motorcycles are running wild on the Massachusetts highways and that the death rate from such accidents is mounting, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today sent out a call to police chiefs to launch a drive against reckless operators. His letter follows:

"Two years ago I asked you to make a particular drive against the careless and reckless operators of motorcycles. The response of the police to that request resulted in cutting the number of deaths resulting from motorcycle operation in the year 1926 to half what it was the year before.

"Now some of the operators, and in fact a large percentage of them, are running wild again on our highways and the death rate is mounting, four having been killed last week.

"There are only 10,000 motorcycles registered, and if automobiles killed the same number of people as motorcycles, in proportion to the number of cars registered, there would be 1,080 persons killed by automobiles up to August 1, when in fact there were only 400 killed.

"I wish you would make a special drive against motorcycle operators violating the law by prosecuting them or sending the number of the registrations to me, so that I may take the plates away from them."

VALERA TO END ULSTER PARLIAMENT BOYCOTT

Dublin, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Eamon De Valera, who, with his Fianna Fail deputies has entered the Dail Eireann after taking the oath of allegiance, may soon also become an active member of the Northern Irish Parliament.

There have been six abstentionists from the Northern Parliament, which sits at Belfast—four Nationalists, including Mr. De Valera, and two Sinn Feiners. It is considered likely that they will follow the course taken in the case of the Dail and cease their boycott of the Ulster body.

De Valera was elected to the Northern Parliament from County Down and to the Dail Eireann from County Clare.

The eyes of political observers are focussed on Tuesday's session of the Dail Eireann when a debate is scheduled to begin with possible far-reaching consequences. The general assumption is that a motion of non-confidence will be introduced, resulting in the fall of the government of President Cosgrave.

The President is represented as unwilling to continue in office even if

SOON AS ONE FULLER QUITS HOSPITAL TWO GO THERE

"The hospital is never too full to receive a Fuller, it seems," and the Governor's two daughters, Lydia and Mary, will on Monday report to the Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, for an examination, which may result in tonsil operations. Their brother, Alvan T. Jr., has just left the hospital.

Hub Voyagers Escape Clyde Liner Fire

Quebec, Que., Aug. 13 (A.P.)—Fire, believed to have been caused by a careless smoker, broke out on the Iroquois of the Clyde Steamship Company, in port here. The damage was said to have been slight. One fireman was overcome by smoke and was taken to a hospital.

The passengers, most of whom were from New York and Boston, were ashore at the time and knew nothing of the fire until they returned. The fire, raging in the linen room, was extinguished in a few minutes.

The Iroquois, which arrived here two days ago, was scheduled to leave tonight for New York.

2 FULLER DAUGHTERS GOING TO HOSPITAL

On Thursday young Alvan T. Fuller, Jr., was discharged from Phillips House after an operation.

He was welcomed at the Fuller Summer home at Little Boar's Head, Rye Beach, by the rest of the family who planned to spend the remainder of the vacation together.

But young Alvan had been at the beach but a few days when his sisters, Lydia and Mary, showed signs of illness. Physicians believe that it is their tonsils which are affecting the health of the two girls.

Accordingly, on Monday Mary and Lydia report at Phillips House for examination and if the physicians there consider it advisable, both girls will be operated upon.

RETH WINS BATTLE FOR HEAD OF STATE LEGION

Fitchburg, Aug. 13.—John W. Reth of Roslindale was elected commander of the State Department of the American Legion at the annual election held in City Hall today.

In one of the hottest fights in the history of the local department, Reth received 231 votes, as against 212 for Richard Paul and 41 for John A. Stitt.

Reth is a former first vice-commander of the department. Paul has been a vice-commander for three years, and Stitt had the backing of all the Bristol County delegation, and was also a vice-commander. He hails from New Bedford, and Paul from Canton.

DEFENCE CLAIMS NEW EVIDENCE

While Boston police officials were announcing today that they will not permit a scheduled Sacco-Vanzetti protest meeting to take place on the Common tomorrow afternoon, Atty. M. A. Musmanno, of defence counsel, was working out a plan to ask Governor Fuller to reopen his investigation of the case and grant a pardon or commutation on the ground of newly discovered evidence.

Undisturbed by the fact that the police broke up their last meeting, arresting four men, the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee issued a call for an even greater number of sympathizers to gather tomorrow.

City officials responded to this announcement with a statement that the permits for public meetings on the Common, held by the Socialist Party and the Workers' Party, and revoked last Sunday by Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley, had not been reissued.

As a result, police under the leadership of Captain Her-

THREE THUGS ROB CAFE; ESCAPE IN WILD CHASE

In a wild chase from Cambridge to the Back Bay early today, three thugs in a sedan escaped from an unidentified Boston policeman, who stumbled into a lunchroom robbery, while on his way home from work.

Walton's Lunch at No. 78 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, was the scene of the hold-up and robbery. Although three men figured in the affair only one entered the place. The trio, police believe, used an auto which had been earlier reported as stolen.

According to attendants in the lunchroom, the automobile stopped directly in front, while the place was nearly empty. Two men remained in the car, the motor of which hummed softly. The third entered. One hand was thrust into a side pocket, as though holding a gun, police were told.

Curtly the robber forced countermen to step into the rear of the restaurant. Then he wheeled suddenly, seized the cash register in both hands and rushed out to the waiting automobile.

As their machine sped off, the shouts of the restaurant employes

POLICE BAR SACCO RALLY PLANNED FOR COMMON

Part W. Goodwin of Lagrange street station will be on the Common to see that Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers hold no further meetings under the auspices of these organizations.

The proposed new plea to Governor Fuller by defense attorneys will be made only if the Massachusetts Supreme Court, which meets next Tuesday, rejects the appeal of the defense, according to Attorney Musmanno.

Musmanno said that if the Supreme Court appeal fails the Governor will be asked to intervene on the ground that every resource in the State courts has been exhausted and new evidence requires action on his part.

Failing in this, he said, the defense will seek a respite from the Governor and will then go ahead with an attempt to get the case before the full bench of the United States Supreme Court.

In the reported new evidence is a story of a South Boston man, said to have been an eye-witness of the murders, and from whom Musmanno hoped to get an affidavit before tonight.

EFFORTS DIVIDED

Attorney Arthur D. Hill, chief defense counsel, said that Musmanno was in charge of this angle of the case while the other lawyers are putting all their efforts on briefs to be submitted to the full bench of the State Supreme Court on Tuesday.

These briefs, it was explained, will contain no mention of new evidence, being based almost entirely on allegations of prejudice on the part of Judge Webster Thayer.

Counsel refused to reveal the nature of other new evidence which they claimed to have, but said it should be passed on by Governor Fuller because it was of a different nature than that before him at his previous investigation which ended with his refusal to intervene to save Sacco and Vanzetti from the electric chair.

MEETING AT 3

The meeting on the Common tomorrow afternoon, as planned by the leaders of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee, is scheduled for 3 o'clock with prominent radicals man of Boston and historian Claude M. Fuess of Andover were re-elected without opposition. Rev. Jeremiah Reardon of Millbury was unopposed for chaplain.

Vice-commanders elected are: William H. Griffin, South Boston; Edward F. Flynn, Lynn; John J. O'Connell, Amherst; Clarence W. Piper, Rockland and John D. Crowley, Cambridge.

Delegates-at-large to the national convention are: Edwin R. Dewing, Wellesley; Norman Singer, Wakefield; Matthew J. Boyle, East Boston, and Frank Brutnell, Agawam.

Miss Harriet Kueman of Boston was elected to the executive committee-at-large.

The pitched battle expected to occur on the floor of the convention as a result of the attack that has been made on the "discrimination clause" of the "Forty and Eight" Society, got under way as had been expected, but came to a sudden and dramatic ending within five minutes.

Resolutions commending the "Forty and Eight" for removing the color line from its constitution were adopted, 241 and 211. A roll call of posts was needed and a spirited debate followed. The resolution in effect passes the color question to the National Legion and instructs the department officers and delegates to the national convention to take up the issue.

Across Harvard bridge went both machines, the sedan drawing away from the other car with a burst of speed that took it well over the mile-a-minute mark. At Massachusetts avenue and Beacon street, the fugitive car came within inches of crashing into another big car, going west on Beacon street. At Boylston street, the thugs swung west toward the Fenway and escaped. A description of them was broadcast to all stations. The amount of money in the register was not known, but it was said to be substantial.

MAN AND GIRL SHOT IN BOOTLEGGERS' GUN DUEL

Bridgeport, Ct., Aug. 13 (A.P.)—Patsy Santora, thirty-six, was shot in the groin and Rose Dodona, ten, was shot in the leg in what appears to have been a bootleg battle in Hallett street today. Santora's assailant made his escape by dodging through an alley and climbing several fences. A revolver was found. The little girl was standing in front of a fruit store when struck by a stray bullet.

Central Falls, R. I., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Elezar H. Meunier, fifty-nine, appeared in the Eleventh District Court today on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

New London, Ct., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Declaring that any man who is supposed to be dead is entitled to sleep late the next day resulted in Mayor Albert L. CADETS OFF FOR TRAINING CAMPS

The First Corps of Cadets, or as the outfit is listed in the Massachusetts National Guard roster, the 211th Coast Artillery, is now encamped at Fort Wright, N. Y., for two weeks of intensive training.

Armed with complete anti-aircraft equipment, including three-inch guns and searchlights, for the first time in its history, the outfit left Boston earlier in the day by marching from the Cadet Armory to South Station, where a special train carried the Bay State men to New London. The rest of the trip was by boat.

The parade to the station was headed by Lieutenant Colonel Horace Z. Langdon, field and staff officers.

Then came the 211th Coast Artillery Band; Battery A, commanded by Major Leon F. Foss; Battery H, Captain Raymond D. Fales; Battery F, Captain Harry L. Spencer., Lieutenant-Colonel Albert Gilmor, Federal instructor, joined the cadets at the station.

The blouses and service hats, being in order instead of the well-known cadet uniform, let the outfit almost get by without being recognized.

Monday the cadets will get down to hard work. With them will be the 242nd Coast Artillery Harbor Defense of the Connecticut National Guard, which will train with the big guns at the fort.

Veterans' Day will be August 20, when special trains will be provided for the trip.

to him for warmth and protection. Strangely enough, it was the dog that first succumbed to exhaustion.

When the dog could no longer keep up with him, the boy picked the animal up and, although he was bordering on exhaustion himself, the boy carried the dog for almost an entire day.

Chief of Police Felix McCarthy led the scores of searchers into the mountains again today, after a fruitless search yesterday and last night. It was a short time later that the boy staggered into a clearing at Rumney, where a party of searchers was about to enter the woods.

WILL SOON RECOVER.

The boy and his dog set out for a short walk into the mountains on Thursday. The family had come here from Waltham for a vacation and the boy was used to taking long walks. It was not until late that night that his parents became alarmed and started the search, which enlisted the aid of men and boys from the entire country-side.

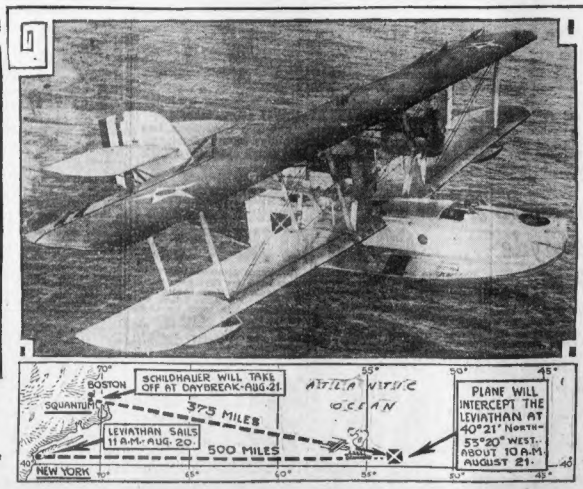

The boy and dog will be none the worse for their experience in a day or two, according to a physician who examined both.

HARVARD MAN WINS WIDOW OF RUSSIAN

Dr. Cowles

Mme. Ferdinand de Morenschildt, the former Nona Hazelhurst McAdoo, daughter of William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, and Dr. Edward Spencer Cowles, Harvard Medical School graduate, were married today in New York City Hall by a deputy city clerk.

Dr. Cowles was formerly N. H., and is a widely known psychiatrist and neurologist in Williamsburg, Va. Nona McAdoo, a belle of Washington society during the Wilson regime, was married to Morenschildt, second secretary of the Russian Legation, in 1917. She had just returned from France, where she had been serving as a volunteer nurse. In 1919 Morenschildt died.

Dr. Cowles, formerly was director of the Psychopathic Sanitarium at Portsmouth, N. H.

He was a director of psychopathology at the New York Polytechnic Medical School and Hospital until it was taken over by the Government during the World War.

Dr. Cowles is 46, while the former Nona McAdoo is 32.

50-YEAR LOVE LEADS 78 AND 75 TO ALTAR

A terse entry on the books of the registry of marriage and births at City Hall tells nothing of a romance a half century old, which culminates when Miss Lutelia A. Sharpe, 75 years old, of No. 2 Atherstone street, Dorchester, weds Frank A Lincoln, 78 years old, Florida hotel man.

While the couple who have reached happiness in the evening of life were reluctant to name the wedding day, friends said they would be married next week.

Over 50 years ago young Lincoln and pretty "Lutey" Sharpe were accepted sweethearts. All their friends believed that they would be married in a short time.

Then something happened. What caused the break between them only the two old folks know, and they will not tell.

In any event Lincoln went south. It is evident that the two regretted the parting after a time for they began a correspondence.

Lincoln's business prospered and he made new friends in the Southland, while Miss Sharpe became interested in other friends here. Finally Mr. Lincoln married a southern girl.

About 20 years ago Mrs. Lincoln died and later Mr. Lincoln came to Boston and again met Miss Sharpe. They renewed their friendship and when he went back to Florida they corresponded. Several days ago Mr. Lincoln arrived in Boston again, this time to ask Miss Sharpe to be his bride. That she consented, is indicated by his trip to the marriage license bureau.

LEAVE BERLIN FOR COLOGNE TODAY

Berlin, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Lieutenant Otto Koennecke and Count Solms-Laubach hopped off at 4:30 this afternoon for Cologne, where they will refuel their Caspar biplane for their attempted transatlantic flight to the United States.

The possibility that one of the fliers may come to Boston in the first western transatlantic air race was strengthened today, according to officials of the Boston Airport transatlantic purse.

Word was received from Dessau, Germany, that Otto Koennecke, one of the three fliers of Junker planes, intends to make the attempt to hop from Cologne to Boston to win the prize of $25,000 offered by local men for the trip.

The fund for the $25,000 prize was started by Sheldon H. Fairbanks, director of the Boston Radio-Aero Exposition to be held in Mechanics Building the week of September 26. Mr. Fairbanks started the fund with $1,000, and announced today that already $5,000 is in sight from local business men.

The retail trade board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce will hold a meeting on Monday, at which they will discuss methods of furthering the project.

Word came from Germany to the effect that Koennecke hopes to start for Boston from Cologne Sunday or Monday. Two other Junker planes will make the hop, one going to New York and the other continuing to Philadelphia.

The aviator was saddened by the death of A. V. Rogers, aspirant for Hawaiian flight honors. "There have been too many killed in preparing for that event," he said.

ONLY FOUR HAVE QUALIFIED FOR HAWAII HOP

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 13 (A.P.)—Navigation tests remained today as the main hurdle between five airplanes entered in the James Dole $35,000 prize flight and official approval as starters in the 2,400-mile aerial derby to the Isle of Oahu, scheduled to start Tuesday. Four of nine entrants who have planes here have qualified thus far.

Death crossed another entry from the list of starters when Captain Arthur V. Rogers, flying his tandem engined monoplane, was killed on a trial flight, at his home hangar, near Los Angeles. He jumped with a parachute after his engines stopped. The parachute failed to open and Captain Rogers fell 150 feet to the ground.

SEES HUSBAND FALL.

Mrs. Rogers stood on the field with her baby in her arms and witnessed her husband's death. Rogers was an experienced pilot, but the plane he flew was of new design.

The tragedy brought the total flight entrants killed to three; Lieutenants George W. D. Gorell and E. S. Wangner having crashed near San Diego, Tuesday, as they were heading for San Francisco Bay.

The remaining pilots and navigators showed no inclination to quit, insisted they complained about the severity of tests imposed by Department of Commerce inspectors.

Lieutenant Ben Wyatt, naval aviator, who is an authority on navigation and in charge of the navigation tests, has insisted on demonstration of ability to fly over a prescribed course without being more than 10 per cent. inaccurate.

FOUR HAVE QUALIFIED.

Only four have passed the test: The Travelair monoplane "Oklahoma," Bennett H. Griffin, pilot, and Al Hensley, navigator; the monoplane "El Encanto" of San Diego, Norman A. Goddard, pilot, and Lieutenant J. C. Hawkins, navigator; the Breese monoplane "Pacific Flyer," in which Livingston Gerring of Berkeley will hop off without a navigator; the monoplane "Golden Eagle," entry of the San Francisco Examiner, piloted by Jack Frost, with Gordon Scott, navigator.

The monoplane in which Miss Mildred Doran, 22-year-old Michigan school teacher, will start for Hawaii, stood a fair chance of winning approval as the fifth starter today. J. A. Fedler, the pilot, has switched navigators and it is expected Lieutenant Vilas Knope, the new navigator, would pass the test easily.

Weather Again Holds Up France to U. S. Fliers

Paris, Aug. 13 (A.P.)—Flying prospects were not brilliant this morning. While there was slight hope that three French pilots champing at the bit at Le Bourget might take off Sunday on their transatlantic expeditions, the idea was not encouraged by French weather wisemen.

Charles A. Levine, owner of the Bellanca plane Columbia, which is ready for a return flight to America with Maurice Drouhin as pilot, appears to share the pessimism of the weather experts. It was announced at his hotel that he was motoring to Deauville today, returning Sunday.

'BELLANCA PETE,' SOCIETY MECHANIC, IN AIR RACE

New York, Aug. 13 (A.P.)—The Evening Post says today that "Bellanca Pete" Brooks, nephew of Lady Astor and a "social register mechanic," who helped to groom the Bellanca monoplane "Columbia" for its flight to Germany in June, has purchased an airplane with which he intends to compete in the air race from this city to Spokane, Wash., next month.

Courtney to Hop in 48 Hours

Southampton, Eng., Aug. 13 (I.N.S.)—Stormy weather over the Atlantic is still delaying Captain Frank T. Courtney, British ace, who will attempt to fly from the British Isles to North America. Courtney hopes to get away within forty-eight hours.

Gloria, Connie Would Both Be 'Mrs. Cheney'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—United Artists own the screen rights to "The Last of Mrs. Cheney." There is no denying that, but whether Constance Talmadge will make it for her next, or whether Gloria Swanson will follow "Sadie Thompson" with "Mrs. Cheney" is a mooted question.

Only one person can settle the right to ownership and that is Joseph M. Schenck. He, Schenck, in most matters, is a modern Solomon, and believe me, he'll have to be Solomon and Socrates combined when it comes to deciding on who plays the role that Ina Claire made famous before the footlights.

Gloria has said there will be no vacation for her—that she will begin another picture just as soon as she finishes "Sadie Thompson." A few months ago she expressed the hope that she might be permitted to make "The Last of Mrs. Cheney." She still thinks it will make a good picture.

Connie, who has had a series of stories that are not worthy of her ability as a comedienne, has also admitted that she will be heartbroken if she is not given this smart comedy.

Serials are a liberal education. Moreover, they are a stepping stone to screen fame. Glenn Tryon, who for years played in Pathe serials, is another proof of the truth of this simple statement. Mr. Tryon is now considered one of Universal's most promising young leading men. He has just been signed to play opposite Laura La Plante in her next starring picture, "Thanks for the Buggy Ride."

Vera Veronia may be beautiful. She may also have more than her share of the "it" so eloquently described by Elinor Glyn, but she hasn't a chance of playing opposite Adolphe Menjou in "Serenade," his next picture. A little bird tells me Mr. Menjou registered such a violent NO to the suggestion that the Dean in the publicity office rattled.

Seems that Menjou's displeasure was incurred when a news item lurgy, stated that "Miss Veronina" was to play the lead in his next picture.

Time was when the diminutive Bennie Zeidman was a well-known figure in the film business. He was general manager of production for Warner Brothers. Then he took John Barrymore and moved to United Artists. Since that time little has been heard of Bennie's activities.

Now comes a story that he has been appointed to take over the Richard Dix unit at Famous and supervise all of the Dix pictures, his first being "The Gay Defender."

There is great secrecy surrounding the filming of "The Main Event," William K. Howard is experimenting —that much I know. He is trying new stunts with the camera—a series of united scenes that seem continuous action without the usual interruptions. At the De Mille studio they believe he has something out of the ordinary. We'll wait and see.

Arnold. The numbers will be: "Glory Be to God" (Rachmaninoff), "Creed" (Greichaninoff); Cantor, Harold Campbell; "O Light Divine" (Kastalsky); "Cherubim Song" (Rachmaninoff); Wallace Smith, trumpet.

At the 7:30 service, Dr. Sullivan's subject will be "The Knighthood of the Spirit." At the sunset service on the porch at 7 o'clock the chorus will sing a Russian anthem from the church

BANK 'SUICIDE' FOUND SELLING GAS IS JAILED

Cleveland, Aug. 13 (A.P.)—Destiny, guiding a Nebraska tourist to a Cleveland filling station, has rolled away the three-year-old mystery of the whereabouts of Jack M. Patterson, former bank cashier and village treasurer of Union, Neb.

Patterson's disappearance indicated suicide, and his wife believed him dead. Shortly afterwards, however, embezzlement charges were laid against him, and it is to answer these that Patterson today is held for officers from Lincoln, Neb.

A woman's overnight bag, containing clothing and two telegrams signed "Helen," announcing the sender's intention of coming to Cleveland, were found today by police and an insurance investigator in the apartment of Patterson here. An "old Nebraska neighbor," driving through from the West, recognized Patterson as he filled the tourist's gasoline tank at the filling station which he had been working under the name of Frank Smith.

"I was going back after I saved enough money to pay my debts," Patterson told police as he awaited arrival of Nebraska authorities, "but the money came pretty slow." He said he was "up to his neck," in about $10,000 of personal debts, but was not guilty of embezzlement.

Patterson disappeared in Chicago, July 11, 1924. His wife attempted to collect $42,500 in insurance, but litigation is still pending because of her inability to prove his death. When notified that her husband lived, she said she was "unable to place any faith in the truth of the claim."

Patterson told police he planned suicide on the night of his disappearance, but was unable "to get up enough nerve."

TROUBLE WITH WIFE ADMITTED BY PURNELL

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 13 (A.P.)—Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David colony, admitted on the witness stand in the State's dissolution suit today that there was "trouble" between him and Mary, his wife.

He flatly contradicted Mary's testimony that his writings, in which he referred to her as a "deceitful reprobate," were the gossip of Ada Koss and Edith Meldrum.

Physicians announced that Purnell was physically able to stand the strain of cross-examination. As upon his first appearance, he was carried into the court on a stretcher, upon which he reclined as he testified.

The leader of the cult denied he had anything to do with the group marriages which the State charges were ordered to protect him. He indicated that Mary, his wife, looked after the arrangements made.

In reply to questions by George Nichols, State's attorney, he admitted he wrote the accusations against Mary and that they were his own.

Among the applications contained in the document from which Assistant Attorney-General Nichols was reading were "This Mary I write of is of infernal wickedness. I cannot write of all she did."

Purnell was on the stand only about an hour when his nurse said he was exhausted and asked that he be excused. He probably will return for completion of his cross-examination Monday.

$100 Fire at Union Club

Firemen worked so quickly in extinguishing a small blaze in the rooms of the Union Club, No. 7 Park street early today, that club members asleep in their rooms were not awakened. The damage was $100.

'I Won't Fly, But Cal May Run,' Says Edison

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—On the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the phonograph, Thomas A. Edison, its inventor, briefly answered questions on politics, aviation and invention. The questions and his answers were:

Q.—Will you follow Henry Ford's example by going up in an airplane? A.—No.

Q.—Have you ever flown? A.—No.

Q.—Do you believe radio will supplant the pronograph? A.—No.

Q.—Who will be our next President? A.—I don't know.

Q.—What do you think about the next Presidential race? A.—I don't do any thinking on that subject.

Q.—Has Coolidge a chance despite his statement, "I do not choose to run in 1928?" A.—If things come to a block, they may force him to run.

Q.—What do you think of the recent transatlantic flights? A.—Stunts, which always follow pioneering of new things.

Q.—What do you consider the most useful invention in the world today? A.—Electric power system and its appliances.

Q.—How did the idea for the phonograph come to you? Under what circumstances? A.—I was working on a telegraph transmitter employing a disk like the phonograph record disk. The dot and dashes of the message were indented on a paper disk. By speeding up the disk unduly the dots and dashes produced in places musical sounds, so all that I had to do was to substitute a diaphragm with a point to record voices.

Q.—What do you believe the phonograph has contributed to civilization? A.—It has made life a little more attractive, and expedited business transactions.

Q.—Which of your inventions in your opinion has contributed most to the comfort of humanity? A.—Incandescent lights and power systems, with moving pictures a good second.

THUGS HOLD UP LAWRENCE MAN

Lawrence, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Three armed auto thiefs held up and robbed Concetta Arcidiacono, a grocery store proprietor, of $600 early today as he entered his garage on Middle street to make his truck ready for an early business trip to Boston.

Two of the bandits, according to the victim's report to the police, pressed guns against his body while the third took the roll of bills from his pocket.

Leaping into their machine, which was parked near the scene, the bandits fled before Arcidiacono could spread the alarm. He managed to get the registration number of the car, however, which is listed to a Haverhill man for whom police are now searching.

Joseph Lambert of Haverhill, a chauffeur, was arrested this afternoon in Haverhill and returned to this city and booked on a charge of robbery.

INDIAN ARRESTED AS ROBBER; COMRADE SHOT

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 13 (I.N.S.—James Rontail, 42, an Indian from the Lawton Station Reservation, and Ladett Butterfield, 35, were arrested when caught breaking into a soft drink establishment here today. Butterfield was shot in the left leg by a patrolman. The men were held on a burglary charge.

'OLD GLORY' IS ALL READY FOR ROME TRIP

New York, Aug. 13.—"Old Glory" and the two men who will fly her to Rome and return faced their most dangerous ordeal when the monoplane was driven into the skies with a load of 13,250 pounds.

This was the final test load. When the great golden-winged bird next goes into the air with a heavy cargo she will carry more than 12,000 pounds and her goal will be the Eternal City.

That veteran of the night mail, J. D. Hill, was at the controls when the ship was driven down the historic runway on Roosevelt Field with the heaviest load that has ever been lifted by a single motor. His partner of the clouds, Lloyd Bertaud, rode beside him in the cockpit.

Long before sun-up the man-made eagle had been poised on the incline of the runway ready for the severe task of lifting more than twice her weight into the air. Shortly after 9 a. m. J. D. and Bert climbed into the cockpit.

A human chain, made of Engineers Alexander, McVeigh and Bartmer, twirled the great propeller which must spin the fliers on the road to Rome, and a minute later the silver bodied bird began roaring down the runway.

At the bottom of the 60-foot incline the ship was dragging its tremendous weight at approximately 20 miles per hour. J. D. gave the ship the gun—full throttle—"Old Glory" started down the long lane which will be the start to Rome.

Several hundred persons who knew the danger of the load held their breaths. Anxious moments. The ship had now passed the half way mark and a short distance down the runway the ship which Nungesser and Rene Fonck drove his mighty Sikorsky plane, with the result that two men were burned to death.

Two-tenths of a mile this side of that gulch the ship still clung to the wheels of "Old Glory" lifted into the air. A few feet up and the ship came down again. A slight breathing of the Jupiter motor and the ship soared like a majestic bird into the air.

The take-off required 41 seconds, covering an extent of a mile. The length of the runway is eight-tenths of a mile.

M'ADOO DECRIES LIBERTY THAT IS LAWLESS

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Lawless liberty is not freedom but anarchy, William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, said today in an address before the University of Virginia's Institute of Public Affairs.

All liberty must be restrained to the point where it is compatible with the liberty of all, the speaker said.

"There cannot be private rights in any proper sense of the term except as they are defined and determined by the community acting through its appropriate organs," he continued.

OBSTACLE TO BE OVERCOME.

"Whenever a question arises, for example, concerning the relation of public utilities, the prevention of fraudulent securities issues, the protection of the health of women and children, or the control of traffic in habit-forming drugs and beverages, the first and greatest obstacle to be overcome is almost sure to be argument that whatever might otherwise be a valid exercise of the State's police power is a wrongful invasion of private rights."

In the past, Mr. McAdoo said, this argument had been commonly used only against legislative bodies and not against constitutional provisions. It being assumed that the scope of private rights could extend no further than the terms of constitutional guarantees.

WHAT ARE "SACRED" RIGHTS.

"Now," he added, "it is being contended, 'under the influence chiefly of a dislike for one of the recent amendments to the Constitution, that there are rights which are sacred from interference by society, even when acting in its constitution-making capacity.'"

Thomas Jefferson, continually appealed to as an exponent of private rights, believed in inherent natural rights, he said, as belonging to communities or societies, but "not to private individuals against the community of which they are a part."

"The strongest, because it is the soundest, argument against government regulation is not the doctrine of natural rights," he said. "But the argument that the government is unfit to discharge the duties which it is proposed to confide in it and that private rights are not safe in its hands."

Execution of 46 Chinese labor leaders affiliated with the Communist faction of the Kuomintang (Cantonese Party) at Kiu-Kiang and suppression of labor unions there by the charge they were Red organizations, was reported today.

According to advices the executions were ordered by Chang Fak-Wei, who had arrested 52 labor leaders.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

North Shore Notables Gather at Topsfield Fair Grounds Today; Sellout at Stillington Is Forecast

TODAY SOCIETY WITH ITS HORSES AND ITS WHIPPETS DESCENDS on Topsfield Fair Grounds. The John R. Macomber stables, the Augustus F. Goodwin stables, Mrs. Sumner Fingree's horses and swift lightfooted polo ponies, some very well known bluebloods of horsedom, are entered. Mrs. Nathaniel F. Emmons of Hingham sends her "Castle Hill," entered under her nom de course of "Miss Lawrence." Frederick Ayer and Frederick Alley will be "up" on fleet polo ponies, and altogether the day at Topsfield ranks high with the North Shore's sporting elements, over on the alert when their favorite outdoor pastimes are concerned.

PRINCEMERE AND MYOPIA SWITCHED THEIR POLO DATE from this afternoon to yesterday, in order not to conflict with this fair and race meet going on at the Topsfield grounds. Since only six men turned out for yesterday's game, they went through with only that number. Both the McKeans, Shaw and Harry; Frederick Alley, Frederick Ayer, Dick Small and Major Colby were the players who went through the chukkers with as much spirit and dash as though these friendly plays were international matches before a gallery of thousands.

WORD COMES UP FROM STILLINGTON OF A SOLD OUT HOUSE for this evening's opera intime. Which means that important people will fill every available bit of space in Leslie Buswell's charming small playhouse whose casement windows command an eagle's view of Gloucester Harbor's twinkling lights. The Weather Man has been consistently kind to Stillington of evenings, so that strolling on the terrace between acts is thoroughly enjoyable. Perhaps Lady Moon will bathe the terrace in soft shafts of light for this evening's opera, that the audience may stroll about between scenes of "Pagliacci."

VIOLENTLY HAS THE AMATEUR THEATRICAL VIRUS INOCULATED the Summer colonies. East, West, North and South, they are "putting on" this, that and the other. Dennis on the Cape has its "Barn Door"; Gloucester has its Stillington Hall; Southern New Hempshire its Mariarden. And flitting on and off the scene are the "Jitney Players." Now let us consider the Cohasset players. Ambitious young people in that pretty South Shore town essay the Metropolitan success "Adam and Eva," to demonstrate their stage technique and histrionic abilities.

FRIDAY NIGHT IN THE TOWN HALL, COHASSETT'S SUMMER colony will applaud such polished amateurs as Miss Delinda Dewson, Miss Ada Dewson, Miss Helen Seymour and Edward Johnson. Miss Ada Dewson's theatrical ventures have carried her successfully into the Footlight Club, that society of thespians acclaimed with enthusiasm and hallowed by tradition. Miss Seymour is the pretty daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm Seymour, and she and the Dewson girls made their bows to society all in the same Winter. Sponsorship for "Adam and Eva" is of the South Shore notables, and Ralph Menard is coaching.

MR. AND MRS. MENARD ARE TO BE IN MARBLEHEAD THIS week-end, as guests aboard the "Mernett II", which flies the private colors of Colonel Willcutt, Mrs. Menard's brother. The Menards have but recently returned from a trip up the coast in the Colonel's palatial power cruiser. They put in at practically every port between Boston and Bar Harbor. Colonel Willcutt and his "Mernett" are familiars up and down the entire coast, as much at home in New England waters as in Florida. He is having quite a party aboard for the wind-up of Race Week at Marblehead.

MISS ELOISE LAWRENCE IS "SKIPPER" AND JOHN S. LAWRENCE is "crew" of a snappy "S" boat that competes today in Marblehead at the end of a week's racing. Since the Lawrence schooner, "Advance," is not in the racing game this season, the Lawrences, father and daughter, are showing their seamanship in the handling of the smaller craft, at which they are adepts, by the way. They did some smart sailing up at Bar Harbor, as visitors during Race Week in that fashionable society center. Miss Lawrence has always been shipmates with her father, and can sail the "Advance" in a breeze o' wind for all the world like an old salt, much to pater's admiration and delight.

STEWART BAIRD WALKS DOWN THE GANGPLANK TODAY IN New York, having added to his admirers Europeans of place and distinction, and so moves on to the Newport appearance in September. Mr. Baird's bag of tricks includes the "something different" that delights smart audiences ever on the lookout for novelties in the way of amusements. In Newport Mr. Baird mingles with the mighty, as guest and as entertainer, equally successful in both roles. His Newport sponsors include such social arbiters as Mrs. Richard T. Wilson and the Robert Ogden Bacons.

IN LONDON MR. BAIRD AND HIS MOTHER, MRS. JOHN CALDWELL BAIRD, were guests of Sir David and Lady Margeson. One of Mr. Baird's drawingroom appearances was at the home of Sir Joseph and Lady Mullens. During their stay in Vichy Mr. Baird hobnobbed with a fellow artist, John Charles Thomas, who is scheduled for a North Shore appearance at the next in the series of Stillington Hall musicales, now quite the rage with the Shore's ultra set. Mr. Thomas and his attractive spouse will be at "Inglelow" until some time in September.

YOUNG MR. FRANCIS HAMLIN, SON OF THE B. NASON HAMLINS, has gone up to Bar Harbor for the brilliant events of mid-August in that smartest of Summer pleasure centers. He is the guest of a contemporary, Alexander Wadsworth, at the Philip Wadsworth shore home. Bar Harbor, with its Swimming Club, gives to the upper New England coast a Newportesque flavor. For brilliant entertaining and eclat, its sports run the Rhode Island spa a close second.

2 ROW WHERRY 50 MILES IN 8 HOURS TO HUB

In good spirits and apparently only healthily tired, Dr. Thomas Richards and Lothrop Withington reached the Union Boathouse on Charles River at 1:05 today, completing a trip by wherry from Plymouth.

The two oarsmen rowed the 50 miles in 8 hours 15 minutes, having left Warren Cove, Plymouth, at 4:50 a. m.

To Mrs. Withington and reporters who were awaiting the voyagers, the two men expressed pleasure in the trip which they said they enjoyed much more than that from Boston to Plymouth last week, when they were bothered by the sun.

The voyage today and that of last week were workouts for a real task which Dr. Richards and Mr. Withington have laid out for themselves next Spring, when they plan to row from Florida to Boston.

Last year Dr. Richards rowed from Norfolk, Va., to Boston, on which trip Mr. Withington did not accompany him.

The two stated that when they left Plymouth the tide was going out, thereby helping them on their way to Brant Rock, which they reached at 6:30. At Scituate, reached at 7:40, the light south wind was refreshing, and at Cohasset at 8:30 the sea was becoming lumpy, necessitating a course nearer shore. Nantasket was passed at 10 when the oarsmen encountered a little rain, with a thunder storm threatening.

At Bug Light at 11 o'clock the tide was making, and they swept up to Governor's Island, reaching it at noon and Warren bridge at 12:45. The drawbridges on the river held them up a little between that point and their destination. During the voyage they consumed oranges, sugar and tomatoes.

FALL RIVER TRAIN IS DERAILED NEAR BRIDGE

Fall River, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—An electric train on the Providence-Fall River branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, bound for this city from Providence, was derailed today as a result of the breaking of a brake rod on the first coach, just as the train was slowing for a stop at Brayton station, South Somerset.

The train had just rounded a curve and a moment later would have been crossing Slade's Ferry Bridge, high above the Taunton River. None of the passengers was injured. The line was tied up for two hours.

RAIDERS FIND LIQUOR UNDER SETTING TURKEY

Springfield, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—A novel hiding place for manufactured "hard liquor," beneath a setting of geese in a turkey's nest, was unearthed by raiding officers in the home of Mrs. Katherine Zymron, who was arraigned in court today for keeping and selling liquor.

The raid at first brought to light some beer. The officers then searched the outbuildings and the anxious expression in the eyes of the turkey aroused the suspicions of one of the sleuths, who prodded the bottled goods.

MISS HIGGINSON WEDS IN LENOX

Lenox, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—The wedding of Miss Lee Higginson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Higginson of this town to John H. P. Gould, son of Mr. Elgin R. L. Gould of New York city, took place today in Trinity Church here.

Bishop Thomas F. Davies of the Episcopal diocese of Western Massachusetts officiated, assisted by Rev. Latta Griswold, rector of Trinity. The bride was attended by her sister, Countess Giangiulio Ruccilai of Rome, whose wedding was a social event of last year, and Earl C. B. Gould of Pittsburgh, Pa., served his brother as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould will live in New Haven, Ct., for the next year to allow Mr. Gould to complete his law course. He was graduated from Yale University in 1925.

IT'S RANCH NOW INSTEAD OF "RAWNCH" WITH PRINCE

Calgary, Aug. 13.—The Prince of Wales has discovered the difference between a "runch" and a "rawnch." He confessed it to a huge crowd gathered to welcome Premier Baldwin of Great Britain.

After Mr. Baldwin had spoken there were shouts for the Prince, and his brief, witty speech came unexpectedly.

"It is a delight for me to come down from my 'rawnch,'" said the Prince. Then, as an afterthought—"Perhaps I should say ranch," he added.

The crowd roared and a voice came from the grandstand: "Oh, you're learning Canadian fast."

"I am told," Wales went on, "that there is a difference between a rawnch and a ranch. A ranch pays, and a rawnch does not. I am not going to give away which my place is."

Ventures into the neighborhood of the ranch a correspondent came to a halt immediately in front of a group of young men led by the Prince of Wales and Prince George, steaming and perspiring over the task of loading river bed gravel into a farm wagon by the shovelful.

Dressed in blue ranch shirts, old trousers and silvers the Princes were slinging gravel into the ranch cart.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison.)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

IN order to test a chemical theory, Edison induced his father's chore boy, Michael Oates, to swallow a quantity of seidlitz powders, believing that the gases thus generated would enable him to fly. The only results were pains in the stomach for Michael and a vigorous application for young "Al" of the long switch which Edison's mother kept behind the grandfather's clock.

IN those early days, Michael Oates was young Edison's "man Friday." The father, Samuel Edison, had a market garden and the two boys would drive a horse and small wagon to town with vegetables, on which they realized as much as $600 in one year. This considerable sum, for those days, was turned over to the safekeeping of Edison's grateful and thrifty mother.

WHEN he was between twelve and thirteen years of age Edison became newsboy on the Grand Trunk local between Port Huron and Detroit. He established a storeroom in the baggage car for papers, candy, etc. Later he set up a second-hand printing press on which he printed his own "Weekly Herald," the first newspaper ever to be printed on a moving train.

AS far back as 1910 only two copies of Edison's Weekly Herald were known to exist. It was printed on the front and back of a single sheet and was commented on by the London Times. That great paper recognized it as a remarkable product for a boy of fifteen. Edison was everything from publisher to distributor, and he was proud of his achievement. (Continued Monday).

WITH CLICKING CASTANETS and much loud stampings the speciality dancers, Tino and Belle, will pleasantly demonstrate the strange writhings of the Spanish tango in "Half a Widow." (Shubert).

SUE SAUNDERS is a fair, flaxen-haired miss who lends a hand with William Frawley in making "Bye, Bye Bonnie" a merry and melodious evening at the Wilbur.

HE'S IN THE ARMY NOW. And that means that "the kid" is getting to be a fine upstanding young feller. It's Jackie Coogan, and you will find him like this with Claire Windsor in "The Bugle Call." (State)

WHEN HEARTS ARE YOUNG, when the white doves are cooing, and all that sort of thing—then this can happen. George Sidney and John Kolb are "Lost at the Front." (Olympia, Scollay, Fenway).

COHAN COMES UP WITH TWO AT ONCE

Very few who know George Cohan could believe that this little package of red fire and energy would content himself with idleness. Therefore those knowing ones winked the other eye when it was whispered up and down Broadway that George Cohan intended to retire and let others than George do the writing and producing for the American stage.

And now these knowing ones are telling everybody else their "I told you so's," because the irrepressible Cohan is coming to bat with the announcement that he is to make not only one new production, but two, and those almost simultaneously. His producing ambidexterity is emphasized by offering the farce "The Baby Cyclone" at the Hollis on Monday and a new musical comedy called "The Merry Malones," starting Labor Day at the Colonial.

Geo. M. Cohan.

"As to the manner in which Mr. Cohan works, there is a touch-and-go and haphazard phase to his methods that is surprising to those who know the methods of other writers.

Closeting himself in a hotel room with a typing secretary he reels out page after page of pencilled script. He works at high tension for a few hours and then hops up to go out and walk. It is on these walks that he thinks and plans out the developments of his scripts. And the remarkable part of his writing is that it calls for surprisingly few commendations. His touch is sure.

"CONSTANT SIMP"

Mabel Normand has bought the picture rights of the recently released novel, "The Constant Simp," by Nell Martin, and expects to start production in a short time. "The Constant Simp," as the title conveys, tells the story of a dumb-bell stenographer

MUSIC PLAY OPENS AT SHUBERT

With the theatrical season fast rounding into shape, the Shubert will open its doors for the 1927-28 season Monday night with a new musical play, "Half A Widow," from the pen of Harry B. Smith and Frank Dupree.

The story of "Half A Widow" is based upon the World War and concerns the love of an American officer for a charming French girl, "Half A Widow" shows how the boys lived in war, in love and in humor. And the entire plot is interspersed with stirring songs, both of a military flavor and of the ballad type.

The roles are in capable hands and the cast includes many favorites.

Gertrude Lang will sing and play the leading feminine role, and Halfred Young, of "Student Prince" fame, will play the leading male part. Both are assisted by Elinor Gall, Milton Wallace, Lew Christy, Meryl Haller, Robert C. Coy, Nan Travelline, Geoffrey O'Hara, Bryan Lycan, Vivian Martin, Ralph D. Sanford, Lewis Newman, Doris Ball, Albert Froom, Kayo Tortoni, the National Male Quartette, and Tino and Belle. The music is by Shep Camp, and the entire production was staged by Lawrence Marston.

On Stage, Romping Gamin; Off Stage, Oh So Grave!

Whoever has seen Frances White in vaudeville romping about the stage, a large bow tied to her hair, full of youth and the animation of sweet sixteen, can hardly imagine that she is in reality a very serious-minded young person.

As you find her back-stage now at the Wilbur in "Bye, Bye, Bonnie," it is not at all a difficult task to engage her in a discussion on such grave matters as music, poetry, philosophy and the like. She would rather talk about Jeritza's singing in "La Tosca" than join you in comment concerning any of the roles in which she has appeared.

Indeed, it is well nigh impossible to maneuver this vivacious young lady into any conversation that concerns herself. Such modesty is unusual in the theatre.

Princess Patsy

PATSY RUTH MILLER will show you what "Painting the Town" is like in her new film at Loew's Orpheum.

TOBACCO VS. ROMANCE

Romance is readily associated with the gallant officers who fought Indians on the Great Plains. In glowing colors they were dashing figures on prancing steeds and all that sort of thing—but as a matter of fact they didn't shave often and they chewed tobacco!

This is the cold fact that belies romance, as discovered in reproducing the story of the Bozeman Trail and the carving of a gateway to the West in "The Bugle Call," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new Jackie Coogan feature at Loew's State.

Edward Sedgwick, who directed the picture, and Colonel George L. Byram, U. S. A., who handled the military detail, went to great lengths to make the picture historically correct—and the chewing tobacco (they called it "eating tobacco") and other details were duly reproduced in the story.

"HONEYMOON LANE"

A. L. Erlanger will present at the Tremont, beginning Monday night, September 12, an outstanding musical comedy success of last season in New York, "Honeymoon Lane," starring Eddie Dowling, and with the New York cast and production intact. This attraction ran for a full year at the Knickerbocker Theatre.

Looking Ahead

In New Farce

GEORGIA CAINE returns to Boston Monday in the new Cohan farce, "The Baby Cyclone," at the Hollis Street Theatre.

BOUND TO BE EFFECTIVE!

"The life of the party"!

Glenn Tryon, appearing as a small town "wise-cracker" in "Painting the Town," at Loew's Orpheum, tells you the correct method of being the life of any party.

Take, for instance, the house warming out in the country.

When you board the train immediately ask the conductor where you are going. As the conductor passes through the train later on stop him and ask him again where you are going. This can best be done by putting your foot out in the aisle and tripping him.

Arriving at your correct station you probably won't have to exert yourself any in getting off. Service is his motto. Let him exercise it. If there is a minister in the party when you arrive, warm up to him. Their lives are drab at the most and a little sunshine is doubly welcome.

Then give the children some hatchets and paint boxes. This will make a hit with their mother, who will take a great liking to you.

You have now graduated out of the wallflower class and may safely be called the life of the party.

That is, if you live.

GOOD ACTOR NEVER ACTS, IS CLAIM

"A good actor never acts." So claims Victor Fleming, the man who produced "The Way of All Flesh," which starts today at the Metropolitan.

Fleming explains by citing Emil Jannings' work as an example.

"Frequently during the filming of "The Way of All Flesh," he says, "I had megaphoned some directions to Jannings, naturally expecting him to follow. Much to my surprise, especially when we were just starting the picture together, he would turn toward the cameras and me, a questioning look in his eyes. The scene would stop. The 'N. G.' slate was held in front of the lens.

"But that is not right,' Jannings would say. Let us talk it over. I must understand what you want. My character must be real.'

"And so we would carefully go over the change I desired in the scene, discuss the situation so thoroughly that Jannings became in fact the character of the story, feeling the same emotions, venting the perfect reactions.

"It did not take me long to realize that Jannings can never give a true Jannings performance when he feels that he is acting," Fleming continued. "And that is why I say that an actor who acts is never a good actor."

Film Actor Works in Three Pictures at Same Time

Holmes Herbert had the distinction of playing in three pictures at the same time when J. G. Blystone was shooting "Slaves of Beauty," the new film at the Boston.

When Blystone started, Herbert, who had just finished a picture for another organization, was working nights with Victor Schertzinger in "The Heart of Salome."

Then the other company called him back for "re-takes." Inasmuch as he was working days for Blystone and nights for Schertzinger, Herbert had to give his Sundays to the other company. However, he satisfied everybody and emerged with his usual contagious smile.

VETERAN IN 'RAIN' AT GAYETY

Walter Ascher, the Doctor Mc-Phail of Lewis Talbot's presentation of "Rain" at the Gayety, is a Londoner by birth, and before adopting the theatre as a vocation, was a sergeant major in the Fourth Queen's Own Hussars. He went to Africa during the Boer War and commissioned a lieutenant in the 35th Imperial Yeomanry. Ascher saw two and a half years of active service in the Transvaal, being invalided home after that time through gunshot wounds received during an engagement with General De Wit's troops.

Walter Ascher.

He then came to America and after trying his hand at cowpunching in Texas, joined a stock company at the Columbia Theatre, Brooklyn, New York, in a company headed by Marie Wainwright and Carleton Macey. His first engagement was in "The School of Scandal," with Sidney Toler.

In the well known drinking scene, Toler's voice broke and Ascher picked up the refrain without instruction, and his salary was raised from $5 to $15 a week. His next engagement was with Ward and Vokes, followed by an engagement with George Sidney, now a prominent picture star. It is a coincidence that Leona Earl, the Sadie Thompson of the present "Rain" company, was also a member of the cast.

TOPSFIELD FAIR

The annual Topsfield Fair will take place at Topsfield, Mass., on September 14, 15, 16 and 17.

This annual event, sponsored by the Essex Agricultural Society, has generally recorded itself as one of the big outdoor events of New England. Already a long list of attractions have been engaged.

AS BETWEEN FRIENDS

SUCH GOINGS ON are beneath the contempt of this dignified overseer in "The Missing Link" at the Modern and Beacon. Nevertheless, he is making a great deal of trouble for Syd Chaplin and Ruth Hiatt.

GIVE THE BOY A HAND

"YOUR PALM, OLIVE," is the gentle entreaty of Richard Walling to Olive Tell in "Slaves of Beauty" at the New Boston. Apparently the little lady will not say the rest of the gag, "not on your life, boy."

The Coat and Joseph

Concerning the rattlesnake skin coat worn by Sue Carrol in "Slaves of Beauty" at the New Boston, Joe Leonard freely admits that the garment was not made exactly out of whole cloth. Quoths Joseph: "To make this coat, sixty-seven pesky varmints bit the dust."

STAGE AND SCREEN

Mr. John Coogan, Actor

In proof of the fact that Jackie Coogan has grown up and joined the ranks of handsome leading men, "The Bugle Call" at Loew's State will show him a-horse and a-fightin' in the most approved manner of the western heroes. That haircut is to blame for it all!

'MURRAY HILL' AT COPLEY TONIGHT

E. E. Clive will re-open the Copley Theatre tonight with the first performance on any stage of "Murray Hill," a farce in three acts by Leslie Howard. Mr. Clive will introduce tonight two interesting Broadway players in Leslie Howard, author of the play, last seen in this city with Katherine Cornell in "The Green Hat," and Genevieve Tobin, also well remembered by Bostonians for her brilliant work in "This woman Business." Both players appear at the Copley as guest stars.

E. E. Clive.

"Murray Hill" is the first offering of Mr. Howard's and concerns the "spinsterhood" of two elderly sisters and the circumstances about to impose a similar fate upon one of their kin of much younger years. How this latter circumstance is averted furnishes the main thread of the story as well as the action, comedy and dialogue of the piece.

Many of last season's favorites have been chosen as the supporting players, including Gaby Fay, May Ediss, Elspeth Dudgeon, David Clyde, Ruper Lucas and Ralph Roberts.

Ruth Hiatt Featured With Chaplin in New Film

New faces and new personalities are constantly being flashed on the motion picture screen. Many of them flit for a little time before the public and then are lost sight of to be quickly forgotten. With Syd Chaplin in "The Missing Link," now at the Modern and Beacon, there is one newcomer, who is destined to find a permanent place in the movies, at least as permanent a place as is to be had by anyone in that ever-changing field of endeavor.

This newcomer is Ruth Hiatt, who enacts the role of the impressionable young woman and who falls in love with that timid youth played by Syd Chaplin. Miss Hiatt has vivacity, an attractive screen personality, and, inasmuch as she is youthful, and of a coloring gentlemen are supposed to prefer, there are reasons for believing that she will surely become a fixture in the movies with a permanent address in Hollywood.

BOWDOIN SQUARE

Lon Chaney's newest film, "The Unknown," is the feature of the Bowdoin Square bill for the new week. The companion picture is "Rich but Honest," with Nancy Nash. A Clyde Cook comedy and five acts of vaudeville are also shown.

COMIC TEAM IN SINGULAR ATTIRE

Usually the policeman's uniform used in pictures is a hand-me-down. Even Charlie Murray, a Keystone cop for many years, used to wear the ready-made suits.

But for "Lost at the Front," the new film comedy at the Olympia, Scollay and Fenway, he has a fine made-to-measure uniform that fits him like the paper on the wall.

Charlie was rather proud of the outfit, which becomes him amazingly. He is co-starred with George Sidney in this wildly exciting laugh film.

Sidney isn't quite so fortunate. He wears almost anything, because his role calls for a character who is not especially particular about his attire.

Nevertheless, both star comics are completely abandoned by the studio wardrobe master when they are forced to appear in billowy feminine attire during one hilarious sequence of "Lost at the Front."

New Mystery Play Coming Soon to the Plymouth

An attraction, the announcement of which carries the elements of expectancy, is "Secret Service Smith," a new play by Lincoln Osborn, dramatized from Major R. T. M. Scott's detective story, "The Black Magician," which will be presented at the Plymouth on August 22.

The new play is sponsored by Ramsey Wallace who will play the title character. Major Scott's creation of the fictional detective is familiar to every reader of mystery tales throughout the country. He is the central figure in over five hundred stories of which "The Black Magician" is perhaps the most familiar. The stories have found a market throughout the world and have been translated into many languages. Mr. Wallace, one of the best American actors, acquired the rights to Osborn's dramatization before the final act was finished.

"Broadway," Night Club Play, in Hub Labor Day

"Broadway," the famous saga of the night clubs, will be presented at the Plymouth by Jed Harris on Monday night, Sept. 5. The Boston company of "Broadway" has been specially organized for this city and will run concurrently with the original company, now in its 47th week in New York.

"Broadway" is a drama of New York's cabarets and what goes on in them and behind the scenes between midnight and daylight. It is written by Philip Dunning and George Abbott in the racy, slangy vernacular identified with the street for which it is named.

'LOVELORN' TO BE FILMED AT METRO

The Cosmopolitan production, tentatively titled "The Lovelorn," and based on the column by Beatrice Fairfax, which has been a famous newspaper feature for many years, has started at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios under the direction of John P. McCarthy.

Sally O'Neil and Molly O'Day will be seen in the leading roles in "The Lovelorn." Miss O'Neil and Miss O'Day are sisters in real life. This is the latter's second important role, she having recently appeared as leading woman with Richard Barthelmess.

Larry Kent also will have his first leading motion picture engagement in "The Lovelorn" in the role opposite Miss O'Neil. Kent only recently decided to become an actor, having studied medicine for three years at the University of California and subsequently appearing on the stage in San Francisco.

Many of the newspaper scenes in the picture will be filmed in the editorial rooms of the San Francisco Examiner.

The screen story has been written by Bradley King.

Creatore and His Band at Norumbega Tomorrow

Creatore, "the Svengali of the Paton," and his famous band, opens an eight-day engagement at Norumbega Park tomorrow.

Season after season for twenty-five years his band has been featured all over the country. This year he has introduced a saxophone octet, which is unlike anything he has produced hitherto.

GOVERNOR WILL BE ASKED TO EXTEND RESPITE OF SACCO

2D PLEA TO U. S. COURT PLANNED

from several large cities listed as speakers.

Efforts to get a public hall for the meeting were unsuccessful, the defense committee declared, and police admitted that they had warned building superintendents not to allow Sacco-Vanzetti meetings, because the halls would not accommodate the large number who would try to crowd in.

The Socialist Party, through their leader, Alfred Baker Lewis of Cambridge, applied to the licensing division of the Mayor's office for reissuance of its revoked permit or a new permit, but no action has been taken and none will be taken, it was said, before next week, Mayor Nichols being out of town.

Police reserves, which have been kept on hand at all stations for several days, will be on duty tomorrow as usual, according to police officials.

In the event of trouble, Superintendent Crowley will personally be on hand, assisted by his staff, Deputy Superintendent Goode, Captains Lutz and Armstrong and Sergeant Thomas Kavanaugh.

HOT WORDS

The meeting of last Sunday was interrupted when alleged inflammatory language against Governor Fuller and Judge Thayer was used by speakers. After the Socialist party permit was revoked the Sacco-Vanzetti speakers moved from the Socialist meeting place at Tree No. 9 on the Charles street mall, and held a second meeting at the Workers' party meeting place until that permit was also revoked.

Defence lawyers today were perfecting plans for presenting briefs to the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court next Tuesday.

Attorney Hill found himself seriously handicapped in the preparation of his case due to the illness of Attorney Elias Field. The latter is confined to his Summer home at Falmouth and unable to come to Boston to participate in the preparation of the brief.

The preliminary draft of the brief which is based on the refusal of Judge George A. Sanderson to grant a writ of error resting on the alleged prejudice of Judge Thayer, was completed this morning.

Attorney Hill at once commenced the work of checking and correcting, a task which was to take the entire day, and probably all of Sunday. He planned to have it in the hands of the printer at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

MAY CALL ALIENIST

Mrs. Rose Sacco, loyal wife of the condemned man, who is anxious that her husband should cease his hunger strike as is Warden Hendry, is confident that the mere threat of forcible feeding will induce her husband to cease his strike. She said that her husband had admitted this on several occasions.

In his interview with Sacco Dr. McLaughlin asked the man if he would take medicine if it were prescribed for him, and Sacco replied in the affirmative. Then the physician asked him if he would take beef broth as a medicine, and Sacco shook his head and shrugged his shoulders.

In an adjoining "blind cell" in Cherry Hill the prison authorities have another problem. It is possible that Bartolomeo Vanzetti may be examined by an alienist or, alienists, to see if his mind is actually weakening under the strain.

Vanzetti discusses his case rationally enough with his visitors, but his actions in his cell seem to show signs of a weakening mentality.

REFUSES FOOD

Sacco was being tempted today by a cup of beef tea left in his cell, but he did not touch it, nor did he eat any of the breakfast or dinner placed before him.

Vanzetti ate heartily of frankforts, bread, beef broth, milk and coffee for breakfast and at noon had eggs, toast and egg nog prepared in the prison hospital. He was visited by Attorney Musmanno, who told him his sister, Luiggia, is now crossing the ocean to see him and Musmanno reported that Vanzetti expressed pleasure at this news.

The Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee sees no hope in the respite of 12 days that Governor Fuller and his Executive Council granted the two men. In a handbill bearing the title, "The Final Fight," they make it known that they likewise see little chance in the appeals now before the court.

"Vanzetti has faith and hope and looks to some favorable change in the case," said Musmanno. "He is not any longer in despair."

Musmanno returned later to the prison with Mrs. Sacco to see Sacco and to urge him to eat. Before they arrived, Rev. Michael J. Murphy, Catholic chaplain, had spent an hour with Sacco, Vanzetti and Madeiros. He reported that Sacco was in bed reading, Vanzetti was writing and Madeiros was having a smoke.

ASK PROTEST

The handbill in part reads:

"The respite for Sacco and Vanzetti means only an added period of torture. There is no hope in the courts. The only thing that can save them is [illegible] their friends [illegible] time is short [illegible] desperate. The failure of the governor or his advisory committee to face the main points in the case, among them the Department of Justice frame-up angle and its explanation of Sacco's and Vanzetti's so-called conduct of 'consciousness of guilt,' is symptomatic of the attitude of mind with which the investigation of the case was carried on. It was not an unprejudiced attitude. Sacco and Vanzetti have been doomed for seven years.

"The lawyers do all in their power in the courts—to no avail. The only hope is the intensified co-operation of workers throughout the world.

"We call upon you to hold meetings in a nation-wide protest on Thursday August 18. Do everything in your power. Bombard Governor Fuller and President Coolidge with letters and telegrams of protest. Act quickly and with fervor. The time is very short. Sacco and Vanzetti must be saved.

"The eyes of the world are on this former Athens of America as it commits this crime against justice and humanity. Come and cry shame at the portals of the State House on Beacon Hill. Come and help save Sacco and Vanzetti."

French Officials Join in Appeal for Sacco

Prominent French officials and citizens are identified with an appeal to "intellectual Americans to prevail upon the United States government to prevent the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

The appeal was received at headquarters of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defence Committee, and a partial list of the names follow:

Francois Albert, minister of public instruction; A. Aulard, professor at Sorbonne; Mme. Autant Lara, of Paris Chamber of Commerce; Victor Basch, president of the League for Human Rights; Georges Bourdon, editor of "Figaro"; Georges Bonnet, deputy; Raoul Brandon, vice-president of the General Council of Seine; Charles Brun, deputy; Fernald Clerc, deputy.

At the Hanover street headquarters of the original defence committee it was announced that a check for $500 had been received from Dr. Michael A. Cohn of Brooklyn, said to have been a constant contributor to the cause of Sacco and Vanzetti for seven years.

It was also revealed that Dr. Cohn sent the checks for $25 received by the two condemned men yesterday.

Charlitte B. Hallowell, Boston society woman, sent a check for $50 and a basket of fruit for the workers. A check for $100 was received from Nellie Smith of Raquett Lake, N. Y.

E. H. Anderson, director of the New York Public Library, wrote for several copies of the Sacco-Vanzetti publications to complete files.

SACCO FEEDING BY FORCE TO BE DELAYED

That the time for forcibly feeding Sacco had not yet arrived was revealed by Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin, prison physician, after a visit today to Sacco and Vanzetti in their cells in the Cherry Hill section of State Prison.

"When are you going to eat?" Dr. McLaughlin asked Sacco.

"No, not now—I don't want to eat," the man replied.

As the physician approached their cells both men were sitting on their cots. They stood to greet him. Dr. McLaughlin told them to be seated. Madeiros, who, too, had been transferred from the death house to Cherry Hill, was pacing the floor.

Dr. McLaughlin said that in the last 24 hours Vanzetti had taken about a gallon of beef tea and three quarts of milk. Sacco had refused everything in the way of nourishment, and was on his 28th day of hunger striking. The physician declared both men were rational mentally.

Today Vanzetti was given eggnoggs prepared in the prison hospital. Maderios ate his usual good breakfast, and is looking forward to his next meal.

SEEK SACCO AID FROM UPPER CLASSES

Designed to enlist the aid of the wealthy and intelligent classes of America in the cause of Sacco and Vanzetti, a new and greater organization, to be known as the National Defense Committee, was born in this city today.

The new organization, which it was stated will work in perfect harmony with the original defense committee with headquarters on Hanover street, came into being at a meeting in Hotel Bellevue, in the shadow of the State House.

The chief organizer was Walter Liggett, who is connected with the Provincetown art colony. Associated with him in the work was said to be Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the former President.

The main purpose of the new organization, it was said, is to enlist the aid of society people, but one of its chief drives will be against President Coolidge to force him to open the Department of Justice files. One of the chief contentions of the original defense committee has been that the files contain information which will establish the innocence of the two condemned men.

It was stated that every Senator in the country will receive a communication requesting him to bring pressure to bear on the president in this connection.

'AVENGER OF ROMANOFFS' CAPTURED; DOOMED TO DIE

Semiapalatinsk, Siberia, Aug. 13 (I.N.S.)—Gen. Ivan Annekov, once known as "the avenger of the Romanoffs," has been captured and sentenced to death, it was announced today. Annekov, who was credited with ordering the slaughter of more than 2,000 Communists and their sympathizers in Siberia, following the execution of Czar Nicholas and his family, fled to China in 1920. He and his chief of staff, Denizov, were captured a few months ago when they crossed the border into Siberia. Both were tried by a special military tribunal, and sentenced to death.

he should win by two or three votes.

In the event of the resignation of the Cosgrave government, Tom Johnson, parliamentary Labor leader, undoubtedly would be called upon to form a ministry, and as the members of the Dail displayed a reluctance yesterday to have another general elected in the immediate future, it is considered that the prospective Johnson government might have a fairly long existence.

De Valera sat silent throughout the session of the Dail.

W. Harvey for sale at public auction. Mr. Whitehill estimated their value at $13,000.

Ritterman, who brought the gems across the border from Canada, was sentenced to a year and a day in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta.

Los Angeles, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Twenty-six girls, after a walkout from El Retiro, a home for homeless girls, took refuge in Juvenile Court here and issued an ultimatum that they would not return until the system of self-government, overthrown by the new superintendent, Mrs. Rosemary B. Good, had been reinstated.

The girls, ranging in age from 15 to 18 years, most of whom walked the 18 miles in the Summer sun to the city, were supported by Miss Jean Shontz, acting referee of the Juvenile Court.

Judge Finds Stolen Auto Just in Time for Vacation

Judge Malcolm E. Sturtevant of Somerville District Court today recovered his sedan in Charlestown. It had been stolen in Cambridge yesterday.

He was preparing to start on his annual vacation. The machine, numbered 3191, was seen with four young men speeding past police in Somerville. Police thought one of the young men was the son of Judge Sturtevant and permitted the car to go.

The auto was found abandoned in Charlestown and returned to the judge in time for him to start away. A few years ago his car was stolen in Thompson square, Charlestown, and recovered in Somerville.

RUM RUNNER'S SLAYING IS LAID TO COAST GUARD

Miami, Fla., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Miami Beach police announced today that Harry Booth, 32, of Miami, whose body was found floating off Biscayne Point, Normandy Beach, was shot and killed Thursday night by Customs men who fired upon Booth and James Willis when they passed in a boat enroute to the Bahamas rum row for a cargo of liquor. FOIL JAIL PLOT OF BAY STATE FUGITIVE

Doylestown, Pa., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—A plot to liberate a prisoner in the Bucks County Jail here, in which a woman was said to have been implicated, was revealed today with the arrival of New Bedford, Mass., police, who will take the prisoner back to Massachusetts.

Discovery of the alleged scheme, which the authorities said was engineered from inside the prison walls by Stephen La Rochelle, Jr., 29, caused an extra guard of State police to be thrown about the jail. La Rochelle, also known as Sylvester Lyons, was said by the police to be the leader of a band of robbers.

He was arrested, Aug. 4, in Bristol, Pa., charged with robbing several stores in Trenton, N. J. His plot to escape was revealed when another prisoner overheard him and a cellmate discussing their plans.

La Rochelle and James L. Neese, 19, Columbus, Ga., who is awaiting trial on a robbery charge, prison authorities said, had planned to beat two guards, steal the keys and make a dash for liberty in a motor car.

The escape was set for 10 a. m. last Tuesday. At that hour State police said a motor car containing a man and woman, who had frequently visited La Rochelle at the jail, was seen standing near the jail, but when its occupants noticed the extra guard they drove away.

La Rochelle was said to have escaped from a Massachusetts State Prison camp, where he was serving a four to ten-year sentence, in 1926.

POLICE TO PREVENT QUESTIONING OF LINDY

Chicago, Aug. 13 (A.P.)—A guard of police was detailed today to prevent Chicago Radicals from questioning Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on his Sacco-Vanzetti views during his official visit as the guest of Chicago.

Lindbergh was to make his first official appearance in a series of stunts over Soldier Field. From there his schedule took him to the Municipal Airport for landing, followed by a reception. He then was to return by automobile to Soldier Field, where a program of speeches, including one by himself, was prepared.

one zero, and take only half your money when the zero comes up.

What chance does the foolish gambling American think he has in a place where owners and gambling tables are "crooked" to start with, where they have two zeros to take your money if either comes up.

And what chance do the poor fools think they have betting on horse races, handing $800,000,000 a year to book-makers and "gentlemen" of the race track?

Lady Ossulston, of the British nobility, will start a "laundry for civilized human beings," and put no laundry mark on things washed. Scotland Yard detectives say:

"Don't do that. Laundry marks help us to catch criminals."

Lady Ossulston might compromise by USING laundry marks but leaving pins out of the shirts. Laundry pins in shirts have not helped to detect criminals, but have driven many to crime.

When Dr. Gantt, brilliant young physician of Virginia, says there are in Russia 4,000,000 cases of malaria, FOUR TIMES AS MANY AS BEFORE THE WAR; that millions have tuberculosis and that half a million suffer from trachoma, while there are only 1,000 cases of that eye disease in the United States, the situation changes. To undermine Russian finance would make little difference to Russia in the next generation. Money lost is soon regained, with energy. But the undermining of health is a different, more serious matter. It destroys energy.

It was probably malaria from the bites of mosquitoes bred in neglected marshes that destroyed "the grandeur that was Rome." Fair-haired, blue-eyed Barbarians could not have done it without the mosquitoes' help.

RICKARD MAY TRY LONDON NEXT

New York, Aug. 13 (A.P.)—Tex Rickard is considering London as the site for a contemplated heavyweight championship fight in 1928. The promoter said today he has received a tentative offer from a syndicate of English capitalists and he added that the idea of a foreign invasion appeals to him.

Rickard's plans for the Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey fight in Chicago well advanced, the promoter is looking forward to an enterprise that would bring together the American champion and a logical English challenger. The Wembley Stadium, with a seating capacity of 140,000 would be the ideal ground for the battle, Rickard says. Available records fail to show that England has had a world's heavyweight championship contest.

"I believe that 25,000 Americans would make the trip abroad for a title fight," said Rickard. "If ny inducement is made attractive enough I cay seriously consider going to London with the fight I plan for 1928. Some friends of mine over there have sounded me out on the scheme, but I have not committed myself."

Rickard may have something more definite than an invitation to take his next fight to London, many observers believe. The list of large cities for his heavyweight extravaganzas has been depleted and Rickard has avoided striking twice in the same place. Jersey City drew the Dempsey-Carpentier battle of 1921, New York the Dempsey-Firpo match of 1923, Philadelphia the Dempsey-Tunney upset of last year, and now Chicago is to have the battle of the Sesqui re-enacted.

Rickard, in company with Leon P. Flynn, Dempsey's manager, and Gus Wilson, the trainer, were to leave here today for Chicago. Before his departure, Rickard intimated that he would bring Luis Angel Firpo, the giant Argentine boxer, back into the ring this Winter. Victor Campolo may come from the Pampas region with Firpo.

MAID SEEKS NATIONAL TITLES

Eureka, Cal., Aug. 13.—Helen Filkey, the world's greatest feminine hurdler, who captured three national championships in one day in 1925, has wired the local chamber of commerce that she will be one of four representatives of the Illinois Women's Athletic Club of Chicago at the national track and field championships for girls at Eureka, September 3.

The Chicago maid has appeared in competition in northern California on two occasions, when she set new records. The battle between Miss Filkey and Elta Cartwright of Eureka in the sprints and broad jump will be among the features of the meet.

Miss Cartwright holds the national title for the 50-yard dash and has leaped 17 feet 7 inches in the broad jump.

The Chicago girl is the former national champion in the 100-yard dash and has jumped well over seventeen feet this year in competition. Miss Filkey is considered by all experts who have watched her work to possess better style than Charley Brookins and other hurdlers of the opposite sex.

The new Albee stadium, where the national track and field meet will be held, will seat 6,000 spectators, and it is expected that the stands will be packed for the classic.

Lillian Copeland of Pasadena, who created three world's records last year, will compete, as will Margaret Jenkins of Santa Clara, American javelin thrower champion, and Vivian Hartwick of San Francisco, holder of the world's baseball throw record.

An invitation has been forwarded to Canada, and it is thought that Toronto will send a team headed by Rosa Grosse, national champion in the 100 yards.

ROCKY STONE ON ARGONNE FIGHT CARD

Rebound Rocky Stone of Dorchester, who nearly caused a riot the other night by hurling a challenge at Monte Munn after the latter knocked out Lightning Dick Ferguson, will be given an opportunity to show his classiest assortment of punches next Tuesday night at Braves Field.

The Beau Brummel of Blue Hill avenue is matched to clash in the ten round semi-final with Cyclone Derosiers of Nashua, N. H.

Since Stone returned from the camp of Jack Sharkey, where he claims he was wised up on things fistic, he has not stopped telling the world of his ability.

In fact, according to Rocky, there are only a few heavyweights in the game today that he can't lick. He admits it himself.

Derosiers is a giant weighing about 190 pounds and he showed local fans that he is a wicked puncher when he knocked out Eddie Corley of South Boston the other night.

Interest in the 50 rounds of boxing at the popular prices of from 50 cents to $2 continues among local fistic fans and they are looking forward to a classy lightweight battle when Jimmy Sacco clashes with Sid Barbarian, the Detroit thunderbolt.

Barbarian is the present lightweight champion of the middle west. He has earned this honor by victories over almost every recognized lightweight in the game and most of his wins have been by the knockout route.

The same sort of supporting card as the Argonne Club makes a feature of has been arranged for the Tuesday night scramble. The show will consist of three four-rounders, three six-rounders and two ten-rounders.

Spike Hennessey of Waltham and Cannonball Cote of Lewiston, who handed the fans plenty of action the other night, have been rematched for a six-round bout.

Pete Chico of Charlestown clashes with Connie Holmes of the South End in another six. These boys clashed in the opening show and made the hit of the night. In another six, Al Lewis of the South End meets Tommy Morrison of Somerville.

Johnny Scully and Billy Glover, rival South Boston boys, will meet in one of the four-round bouts, while Mickey Saunders of Chelsea and Tom McCoy of Providence meet in another. In the opening bout Joey Conley meets Billy Nelson.

MALONEY WINS BY KNOCKOUT

New York, Aug. 13.—Jim Maloney knocked out the Jamaica Kid, Harlem's veteran negro heavyweight in the fourth round of what was to have been the 10-round feature bout before a crowd of about 8,000 fans at Dexter park arena in Brooklyn, but the victory doesn't mean a thing.

The surprising part of it is that the war-worn Kid lasted for three full rounds and one more than a minute of the fourth against the man who but a short time ago was being primed as a possible opponent for Champion Gene Tunney.

Referee Eddie Forbes counted the Kid out after 1 minute, 4 seconds of the fourth session when the negro slumped to the floor from a clinch. Not a blow was struck in that clinch, but a right to the heart sent the Kid into the embrace, so that it must be presumed that this is the blow which actually finished the battle and the Jamaica Kid.

Golf One of the Best Games in the World to Take Mind Off Worries, Says Dempsey

(Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

FOUR years ago when I was training for Luis Firpo, some of the folks around Saratoga suggested that I try a little golf as a help in training. I laughed at them, took them no more seriously than if they had suggested that I play checkers to help get into shape.

But my ideas have changed—completely.

I tried golf at Saratoga when training for Sharkey and right now I want to say that it is 100 per cent. with me in helping a fellow get into the right physical condition and the right frame of mind for a tough athletic combat.

In the olden days when I laid off training I just used to loaf around my rooms and do a lot of fretting and perhaps some worrying. When the supposed day of rest was over I was worse off than if I had worked. Frankly, the days of rest were the ones I hated most of all when I was actually in intensive training.

This time up at Saratoga when Leo P. Flynn ordered a day of rest, and I was about to do a little objecting, he added:

"We golf."

WELL, I figured that almost anything was better than just sitting around. So we went over to the McGregor Country Club, grabbed some clubs, got some caddies, and began socking the ball around. I only went nine holes that day, but when it was all over I felt great.

The exercise had been just enough to keep the muscles from tightening; the walking around in the sunlight and in the fresh air helped a lot. And the sport of the game—well, that got my mind all off fighting worries and that WAS a HELP.

None but an athlete ever knows just how keyed up a man can get who is fitting himself for fight and who keeps thinking about the battle that's ahead of him.

The old thing about "well, don't let it worry you" is just bunk. It can't be done. A fellow WORRIES—and he WORRIES A LOT. The more that victory means to him the more he thinks about it and the greater the mental strain.

But golf made me forget about it.

I DID a lot of golfing before that Sharkey fight. Flynn threw me out of training for six or seven full days and most all of them were devoted to golf. Some days it would be just nine holes. Generally it was 18. And once we went 27. I never came back from a game of golf without feeling better in every way.

After I am all through with the ring game, and want a steady exercise, I think I'll take up golf. I don't ever expect to win any cups or championships, but some day I may give a few good golfers a little scare anyway.

I can get an awful lot of distance on my drives right now, for driving calls for power—and I have that. But after I get off the tee I'm usually a total loss until I get onto the green.

Then I get good again.

Driving and putting—that's where I'm not so bad. But approaching—well, not so good. But give me more time for practice, and I'll quit shooting around 100 and begin knocking 'em off around 85 and 90 without any trick bookkeeping or absent mindedness about shots to help me out.

AFTER RECORD AT BIKE OVAL

Tonight, the Revere Cycle Track will see six of the world's foremost pedal pumpers striving to beat Father Time. George Chapman, Frankie Keenan, Charley Jaeger, Bobby Grassin, Charley Verkeyn and Dan Picione are the riders who will arouse the fans as they endeavor to outsprint the man with the scythe.

It is a capable aggregation with speed and staying qualities standing out all over them.

An innovation in the form of Clarence Carman, mounted on a valmo-wheel skate, being paced by Charley Stein, will be introduced. A four-man pursuit race and events for the local riders complete the program.

Dundee and Mitchell Draw Suspensions

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—The business of boxing, as engaged in by Joe Dundee of Baltimore, the welterweight champion, and Piny Mitchell of Milwaukee, former junior welterweight titleholder, is headed for somewhat of a depression between now and next January 1.

The two fighters were suspended by the Wisconsin State Athletic Commission yesterday as punishment for their poor showing in a bout the day before. The referee declared their engagement a no-contest event after six rounds of listless sparring and clinching the commission also held up their purses.

ST. LEO'S CATHOLIC CLUB TO PLAY ST. GREGORY'S

St. Leo's Catholic Club of Dorchester and the Ashmont Town Team will clash at the new Dorchester park, opposite St. Gregory's Church, Dorchester avenue, tomorrow, at 3 o'clock.

It will be the second game of a series, as St. Leo's has already beaten the town team once. "Tip" O'Neill, St. Leo's coach, will probably have Steptoe, Harvard star, on the mound, with Doherty or Mayers on the receiving end.

The Ashmont Town Team will have "Jiggs" Murphy twirling, with Regan doing the catching. Owing to the rivalry between the two teams in the district a large crowd is expected at the newly laid out diamond at Dorchester Park.

BIG PARADE STARTS FOR CHICAGO

Gen. Tex Rickard and Leo Flynn Advance Today on Battleground

New York, Aug. 13—The "big parade" to Chicago, a convention ground for the 1927 edition of the Tunney-Dempsey celebration, starts today.

General Tex Rickard heads the procession. Leo Flynn and Gus Wilson, Dempsey's chief advisor and trainer, respectively, will share the same quarters with Rickard on the move west. Joe Boynton and Walter Fields of the box office brigade will also be in line.

Flynn announced that Jack would do his stuff at the Lincoln Fields race track. Leo said he expects the former big boss to join him in Chicago Thursday, by which time he is positive he will have the training camp prepared for Jack to start.

According to Flynn, Dempsey will begin light work by next Friday. Boxing will not be added to the daily routine for a least another three or four days, as Leo is eager to make certain that his charge is ready to don the big pillows before strutting his stuff.

Flynn has already lined up five sparring mates for Jack. Besides Dave Shade, Martin Burke and Allentown Joe Gans, who helped condition Dempsey for the Sharkey fiasco, Leo has closed with Jack McAuliffe, clever Detroit heavy, and Sullivan, St. Paul welter, to join the staff. Flynn said he had his hooks out for four or five helpers.

Shade, Burke and Gans have already been instructed to report next Saturday for work. Flynn plans to hire nothing but small men with the exception of Burke and McAuliffe, as he believes Jack will need a fast pace.

Rickard expects to throw open about a dozen ticket offices to handle the rush and will remain in the Windy City with his staff until after the fight.

One of the most powerful lighting systems ever used at any fight will be installed. Forty 1000-watt bulbs will be placed over the ring, making it possible to get a clear view from any section of the immense bowl. Only 37 of the same bulbs were used at the sesqui grounds in Philly last year.

BIG FLEET AT MARBLEHEAD

Marblehead had a real wholesail south by easterly breeze. It was more than a rail breeze and white sails were wet near the booms by the [illegible] thrown as the prows of close to 300 yachts dipped into the waves. A good breeze of wholesail strength usually cuts down the entry list, and therefore it was not a surprise that only 287 yachts crossed the starting line.

Really, this was a very good showing under the conditions. It was a fine exhilarating breeze. A host of white wings floated over the crest of the waves of boiling green sea as the craft came flying home borne on the wings of the wind. It made a beautiful picture, these craft sailing under a blue sky on a bluer sea, which was dotted with little tufts of white.

Leonard-Nickfor Go Tops Card

New York, Aug. [illegible]—Johnny Leonard, [illegible] weight [illegible] George Nickfor of Brooklyn in the [illegible] number of six bouts at the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club [illegible]. Although George is possessed of plenty of stamina and a good [illegible], Leonard's experience is expected to carry him to victory.

Interest will centre on a six round tussle in which Kid Francis, bantamweight champion of Italy and France, makes his debut against Jacinto Valdez. Francis has shown plenty of stuff in his workouts and looks like the goods. He is booked for four bouts at this club.

In another six session event, Frankie Bauman, the hope of Nat Rogers, goes against Johnny Burns. Tommy Lorenzo, of the East Side, meets Eddie Paradise in another bout of six rounds.

Wanderer Eleven Ready

New York, Aug 13—The Brooklyn Wanderers and the Hispano Club are ready for their soccer match at Hawthorne Field in Brooklyn at 3.30 tomorrow afternoon. The lineup of the Wanderers has not been determined definitely yet, as some of the regulars have not rounded into top playing form and others are on the injured list.

Hispano, in its last game, triumphed over the Maccabees of Palestine and is anxious to get into action against the Wanderers. Hispano is confident it can turn back the American League team and from all indications the game will be marked with brilliant scenes.

TILDEN WINS OVER LOTT IN STRAIGHT SETS

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 13 (A. P.)—William T. Tilden, 2d, defeated George Lott, Chicago, 6—2, in the first set of the finals of the Meadow Club invitation tennis tournament today. Lott won his way to the finals by defeating Rene LaCoste in straight sets yesterday, while Tilden won from Jacques Brugnon.

Only the second set was closely contested. In this test Tilden came from behind when the fiery Chicago youngster had accumulated a lead of four games.

In the third set both players eased up, Lott being obviously discouraged. The two matched placements some of Tilden's vicious shots sending Lott lunging all over the court in gallant but futile efforts to get returns.

The first set was a baseline duel with Tilden outdriving his younger rival. Lott could take but one game on his own service and broke through Tilden's service once.

First set point score, Lott serving first:

Tilden	4 4 3 1 0 8 4 4 3	36—6

CANOEIST ATTEMPTS TO PADDLE ROUND NEW YORK

New York, Aug 13.—Charles H. Clark of the Pendleton Canoe Club of New York will defy wind and tide traffic and treacherous currents in an attempt to paddle around Manhattan Island this afternoon in five hours. The distance is about 30 miles, but the feat is complicated by the fact that much of the way the going will be [illegible] because of many tide rips in the North, Harlem and East Rivers and the bay and Hell Gate. Clark will start north, up the Harlem, from 125th street. He will use a double-bladed paddle.

ROSENBLOOM MATCHED WITH TIGER FLOWERS

Seattle, Wash., Aug 13 (A.P.).—Tiger Flowers, former middleweight boxing champion and Maxie Rosenbloom, have been matched for a ten-round bout, August 25 in Detroit.

GIBSON COMES EAST TO GET TUNNEY

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Billy Gibson quit his palatial bungalow atop the Hotel Sherman this morning and hied himself hence to New York to see what can be done about persuading Gene Tunney, the heavyweight boxing champion of the universe, to leave his present training quarters at Speculator, N. Y., and move his retinue here.

Gibson having closed for the Cedar Crest Country Club, as the spot where Tunney will whip himself into shape for the defense of his title, and having mingled with the loop-hounds for two days in what might be termed a social way, decided today that he would return to New York and personally escort his champion into the battle area.

Gibson took time out from his social obligations long enough to announce in almost a positive tone that Tunney would arrive in Chicago Thursday, September 1, just three weeks before he will be called upon to defend his title against Jack Dempsey at Soldier Memorial Field.

Cedar Crest Country Club, Tunney's training camp, is located approximately 50 miles from Chicago on a hill in Lake Villa, Ill. It is bounded on one side by Fox Lake and on the other by Lake Petite. The club was formerly one of the Deering estates.

Tunney will occupy a 40-room house, valued at $250,000. The house is surrounded by a 250-acre tract of land over which are scattered twenty-seven Summer cottages. These, according to Gibson, will be available [illegible]

BROWN HAS 8 'IRON MEN'

Providence, Aug. 13—Brown Uni[illegible] for the 1927 football season [illegible] announcement was made that forty-six football men, who are candidates for positions on the team, were declared eligible.

Nine men are on the uncertain list and their status will be determined when all records of Summer school work have been turned in next month.

The list of eligibles insures the [illegible] of the varsity men of last year, virtually all of the yearling material, and indicates that Coach McLaughry's troubles from the eligibility quarter will be practically nil unless unforeseen developments arise to rob the team of men that are slated as prospects now.

Numbered in the 46 eligibles are eight of last season's team of [illegible] mous "Iron Men."

The eligible men are: R. H. Allen, [illegible]; J. J. Burke, Magnolia, Miss.; J. R. Campbell, Hastings-on-the-Hudson, N. Y.; L. G. Cary, Richfield Springs, N. Y.; J. H. Channing, New York City; R. H. Dixon, New York City; W. S. Dodge, New Bedford, Mass.; Paul B. Edes, Newport, R. I.; C. H. Edwards, Chicago, Ill.

Boat Ride Opens Way to $25,000 Fortune

By Jack Conway

"WHAT is the easiest way to get $25,000?" demanded Mr. Boston as he stepped off the train from New York. Somebody suggested pulling a Jimmy Walker [illegible]

"You're wrong as usual," [illegible] solution to this query."

[illegible] Sammy [illegible] championship.

"Take a [illegible] Spain or [illegible] or Africa or some other distant [illegible], answered Mr. Boston. [illegible] atmosphere for a few months, hire a press agent and have him wire Tex Rickard that you are on your way to North America [illegible]. Then take another [illegible] newspaper [illegible] your arrival in the big sucker town and then pick up the $25,000 in one of those heavyweight [illegible] tion matches at the Yankee Stadium.

"The case of one Paulino Uzcudun, the basque woodchopper, is the one in point. Paulino was paid off at $25,000 for his so-called ring effort with Jack Delaney.

"The funny part about this Paulino thing was that all of the experts agreed that he was a bum before the bout. They said right out in open meeting that he couldn't box a lick and that his only asset was ruggedness. Despite all this the good people of New York paid $116,000 to see him flounder around with Jack Delaney. I understand that Paulino has already booked reservations for Spain. He will be able to buy plenty of hot tomales with $25,000.

Mr. Boston

"REFEREE JIMMY CROWLEY must have tired of seeing Paulino doing the animal act which probably explains why he gave the bout to Delaney on a ghost foul in the seventh round. If the Frenchman was hit low, Jack Sharkey was murdered in cold blood the night he fought Jack Dempsey.

"Since the Dempsey-Sharkey bout, the New York referees have been watching out for low punches. They gave Tom Heeney a win over Bud Gorman on a foul, while Delaney started Paulino back to Spain by the invisible foul route. If Heeney and Delaney were entitled to decisions, Sharkey was three times as deserving of consideration the night he fought Dempsey.

"Practically everybody who was at the ringside agreed that Dempsey committed four or five open fouls, while nobody has yet been found who saw either Gorman or Paulino shoot any socks which were extremely low. I think Heeney and Delaney should offer a vote to Sharkey for getting them their recent victories.

"I'M tuning up for the featherweight championship brawl between Sammy Fuller and Johnny Sheppard which will be staged by the Suffolk A. A. at the Boston Arena on August 22. Fuller is rightfully termed the new Pancho Villa. He will make Sheppard step at a lively clip if he is to win. I saw these kids battle at the Arena last Spring. On that occasion they furnished one of the liveliest featherweight matches ever seen in the Hub.

"I must be skipping along now as I've promised to drop in at the garden party for the Children's Vacation Club at Sunset Point, Nantasket Beach, tonight. As part of the program, most of our prominent boxers will do their stuff."

BRITISH POLO TEAM WORKS OUT TODAY

New York, Aug. 13—Word that the British Army-in-India lineup for the international matches at Meadow Brook next month would be chosen after last Thursday's game at Talbot Field, was premature, and it is doubtful if the general staff of the invaders, consisting of Colonel Commandant H. A. Tomkinson, Colonel De La Poer Beresford and the Maharajah of Ratlam, will make its decision even after today's game, which will be held at 4 o'clock on Cochran Field at Meadow Brook.

Not once since their arrival in this country have the British players found a field dry enough to let them put on the type of play to which they are accustomed in India, and until the men are tried out under such conditions a final choice will be impossible.

HARVARD-YALE TEAM TRAILS ITALIAN RIVALS

Leghorn, Italy, Aug 13 (I. N. S.)—The United States University tennis players trailed their Italian opponents by a score of two to three today as a result of the defeat of W. M. Reed of Yale and H. T. Hill of Harvard, in the singles and Charles Watson of Yale and Hill, in the doubles, by the Italian University champions in yesterday's matches here.

T. B. McGlinn of Yale and L. H. Gordon of Harvard won their singles matches against the Italians.

MAY REMATCH BASQUE AND DELANEY

New York, Aug 13.—Jack Delaney and Paulino Uzcudun may meet again, but not until late next Winter. Though Tex Rickard is for putting on another jam between them, he believes it bad policy to rush the return meeting. He knows the public will rush back for more if given time to forget. Tex said he preferred to show each in a few other matches this Fall and then bring them together again.

Before returning to Bridgeport Delaney said he was willing to tackle the Spaniard again any time or any place. "If it's O. K. with Pete Reilly, it's O. K. with me," said Delaney.

Jack appeared to limp a bit and said that he suffered a little pain during the night from several of the low punches he received.

Wightman Cup Likely to Remain in U. S.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 13.—That slim vase of silver known as the Wightman cup and emblematic of supremacy in women's tennis, seems likely to remain on Uncle Sam's trophy shelf for another year.

Led by the inspirational play of their young general, Helen Wills, now recognized as the greatest of the world's women amateurs, the American team took two of the three matches contested on the Forest Hills turf courts and need but two more of the remaining four to retain the cup.

Helen Wills opened the play by administering the most one-sided defeat in the history of the Wightman cup play to the brilliant young English player, Miss Joan Fry. The dynamic, hard driving girl from the Coast required but twenty four minutes to win from her English opponent, 6—2, 6—0.

Mrs. Molla Mallory, the Norse woman, who is one of the most colorful players in the women's division and now holds the American [illegible] powerful [illegible] stroke, swept through the famous internationalist, Mrs. Godfree, 6—4, 6—2.

Mrs. John P. Hill and Miss Gwendolyn Sterry saved the English forces from complete rout, [illegible] 7—5.

FOUR MATCHES TODAY.

The four remaining matches of the [illegible] Miss Betty Nuthall and Miss Helen Jacobs, will meet in the third singles. Mrs. G. W. Wightman, captain of the American team, and Miss Wills meet Mrs. Godfree and Miss [illegible] doubles test.

The beginning of the Wills-Fry match prophesied the route that was to come. Miss Wills, contenting herself with a base line position, [illegible] won at two love.

That coaching which Billy Johnston, who owns the greatest forehand in tennis, is said to have given Helen over the Winter had apparently [illegible] moment, and Miss Fry, redoubling her efforts, took the next two games to even the count.

HELEN'S GREATEST TENNIS.

These were the last the English girl was to win.

Still maintaining her position in rear court, Helen cannonaded her opponent's back lines with smoking drives. Hitting out with the free forehand stroke which is recognized as the most powerful in women's tennis, Helen took the next four games to run out the set at 6—2.

The final set found the American girl displaying the finest tennis she [illegible] swift shots for clean placements, she seemed unable to err and ran off five games from her baseline position.

Something of the American girl's superiority may be gleaned from the summaries, which show Helen with [illegible] 42.

Just What to Do When Canning Day Comes

By MARTHA LEE

THE jars and other equipment are ready, the new boxes of rings have arrived from the store, the food has come from the garden or the market. Let us get to work at our canning at once.

The fruit or vegetables are washed thoroughly and prepared for the first of the canning processes.

The appearance of fruit and vegetables is improved by sorting and grading. Beets, carrots and other vegetables to be canned whole should be assorted by sizes, asparagus by the thickness of the stalks. In shelling peas and lima beans for canning it is well to have two or three bowls instead of one, keeping the younger vegetables separate for very choice packs.

Peas or beans which are turning yellow should be kept separate for purees or soups, as they [illegible] the liquid in the jars. Fruits should be graded for [illegible] size. If the hot pack [illegible] is used the [illegible] more cooking than soft ones.

You will [illegible] the table published [illegible] that fruits [illegible] vegetables are to be blanched. This is simply [illegible] or immersion in boiling water or live steam. It serves a variety of purposes. It insures cleanliness. It reduces greatly the number of surface bacteria which may be on the food.

On large fruits or vegetables it loosens skins. The action of the steam or hot water [illegible] the coloring matter and makes a [illegible] appearing product. It [illegible] greens and vegetables, permitting a close and [illegible] pack. Blanching should be omitted in the case of all [illegible], as it tends to extract the juices.

The utensils [illegible] for blanching will also be found in the average pantry or kitchen cabinet. There must be a large pan or kettle to contain the hot water and a wire basket or a square of clean cheesecloth to hold the food while it is being dipped.

The period of blanching varies for different foods. For [illegible] this has been included in the table for processing. As a general rule vegetables should be blanched longer than fruits, and greens still longer, as the blanching process is partly relied upon for cooking.

After the food has been blanched plunge the basket or the cheesecloth containing it into cold water and remove it immediately. This sets the coloring matter and tends to make a clear bright pack.

Pack the food into clean, hot jars, arranging it so that it shows to the best advantage. In packing corn or peas be careful that they are packed loosely enough to allow thorough [illegible] of heat.

Many of the cases of corn spoilage are traceable to tight packing of the jars. The heat cannot penetrate the solid core at the centre and imperfect sterilization results.

Fill the jar to overflowing with hot water, syrup or in the case of [illegible] with the brine or vinegar. In packing vegetables most canners prefer to add the salt dry and fill the jar from the boiling teakettle. The correct proportion is a level teaspoonful to each quart jar. Adjust the rubber and set the lid in place. For a screw-top or Mason jar, screw the lid as far down as possible without exercising force. Then unscrew about a quarter of a turn. This gives the partial seal best for sterilization. With a spring top jar secure the lid with the bale, but do not adjust the second wire which tightens the clamp.

Processing is the actual cooking of the food in the jar. The length of time is determined by the product and the kind of equipment used. The required time for processing each product, either in the water bath or the pressure cooker, is given in the table. When the water bath is used do not begin to count the time until the water is boiling hard.

Keep water boiling throughout the entire period. To prevent drawing liquid out of the jars the water in the canner should cover the tops at least an inch.

When the time is up remove the jars and tighten the covers at once. Do not on any account remove the [illegible]. Allow the jars to stand in full sight until entirely cool. Do not let a draft strike them until they have thoroughly cooled or breakage may result.

Before storing jars invert each one for a moment and wipe with a dry towel or test for possible leaks. If a leak is found the jar may be resterilized with a new rubber about one-quarter as long as time allowance for that particular product, or set aside for early use.

If new jars have been used, save the brown paper carton in which they came from the store. These protect the jars from breakage and light. If the cellar is not decidedly dark, products which fade easily, as strawberries, raspberries, beets, tomatoes, etc., should be wrapped in newspapers before they are placed on the shelf.

And I do want to say a few words on the canning of greens. Many people are very fond of them, and they are one of the greatest health foods we have.

Sort the greens carefully, taking out all dry or decayed portions and all weeds or grass. Wash carefully in several waters to remove every bit of grit, lifting the leaves from one bowl into another, not pouring the water off. Blanch fully fifteen minutes in live steam or four minutes in boiling water. This is necessary to make the greens tender. Pack into hot jars to one-half inch of top. Do not pack tightly. Add a level teaspoon of salt to each quart jar, fill the jars with boiling water, seal partly and sterilize for three hours in the water bath, or ninety minutes in the pressure cooker at ten pounds.

Green or wax beans grow so abundantly that even a small garden is likely to produce a surplus, and the markets always yield a plentiful supply. Wash and remove the strings, cut into inch lengths, add boiling water to cover, heat to boiling and pack into hot jars. Add a level teaspoon of salt for each quart, fill up with boiling water in which beans were cooked, seal partly and process for three hours in the water bath or forty minutes in the pressure cooker with ten pounds of steam.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

How Sun Benefits Body

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.

YOU have heard much about the sun-bath and about the effects of sunlight on the body. You may even have gone to the extent of exposing your body for a time to the sun's rays. If you have, the probabilities are that you have felt disappointed. This is not to be taken as evidence against a sun-bath, but against your method of taking it.

A sun-bath is the best thing possible for nearly everyone, but only if it is just right and not excessive.

Familiarity should not be allowed to make us forget how powerful an agent the sun is, and we should be constantly on our guard against over-exposure. This is especially true if we are weakly and all run down or suffering from any poisoning condition such as an infectious illness.

Aged and ill people and very young and ailing children are apt to take harm from long sun-baths until they get well used to them. They are all capable of deriving great benefit from the sun, but only in very carefully measured doses. The rules for them are quite different from those for young healthy people.

Everyone knows the dangers of heat and of sunstroke in hot climates, but few realize that excessive sunburn can be almost as great a danger. The sun is a powerful stimulant, but there is a limit to the action of every stimulant. The body can stand just so much stimulation [illegible], and when energy has worked up to its maximum activity [illegible] sun deposes and sickens. Moreover every stimulant in [illegible] of poison to the body.

[illegible] that is enough for the time [illegible] the danger of sun treatment. Let us now consider the way in which it actually does its work on the body. Sunlight works in three ways—on the mind, on the surface of the body and on the tissues beneath the surface right down to its deepest and most hidden recesses.

On the mind it has a powerful [illegible] effect. It exhilarates and energizes. It induces gaiety, liveliness and well being. It banishes gloom and depression. Not only does it increase vitality, but by liberating the latent powers of the mind it raises the mental capacity. Children exposed to sunlight are found by mental tests to be a year older in intelligence than exactly similar children who are not getting this splendid tonic.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN,

1. When invited to a trousseau tea is a gift necessary?

2. At an evening wedding where the men are wearing Tuxedo suits what color and kind of ties are worn? I have been informed that the bridegroom wears white, while the others (the best man and ushers) wear black ties. Is that true? M.

IF the tea is the usual one given by the bride to show her trousseau a gift is not necessary. This is the most informal kind of tea—just a gathering of the bride's closest friends to "see my trousseau" and "my presents." However, if the trousseau tea means a shower tea then each guest is supposed to bring a present that will add to the [illegible] trousseau.

2. There is only one kind of tie that is correct with a Tuxedo suit—a black bow tie. The white bow tie is worn only with full dress, never with dinner jacket.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In congratulating a newly-wedded couple, what are the correct words to say—to the bride and to the groom? E. R.

IT is convenient to remember that the words "Best Wishes" are always correct to say to the bride, and the word "Congratulations" is correct to say to the groom. Added to these words are the wishes that we would naturally voice to these friends. The added word [illegible] depends on how well we know the bride and groom. For instance, we may say, "Dearest wishes to you, Mary. You looked [illegible] today" and to the groom we [illegible] add something [illegible].'

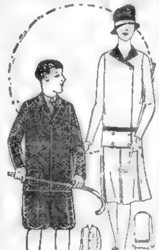

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What is your opinion of a man, who, after I have known him very well for four years, still asks me and my family to call him Mister, using his last name, when he calls us all by our first names. RENE.

I DON'T know what to think of this. Either he has an exaggerated ego and likes the important formality of the "Mr.", or he has a magnificent sense of humor and is watching to see how long this curious status can hold out. Don't tolerate either any longer.

Why not "first name" him at once? Begin in short, if you want, but begin.

Make Candy without cooking

DID you know that by using Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk you can make delicious candies without any real cooking? Here are two popular recipes that call for this fine milk. (It is really two ingredients in one—a rich, smooth blend of full-cream country milk and finest sugar.)

Coconut Creams

¼ cup Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups confectioner's sugar
1 cup coconut

To the condensed milk add the vanilla. Stir in two cups of the sugar, then add the coconut and sugar enough to stiffen to the desired consistency. Drop by spoonfuls onto a waxed paper or oiled pan.

Chocolate Nut Truffles

3 squares unsweetened chocolate
½ cup Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk
1½ cups confectioner's sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup English walnuts

Melt the chocolate over hot water. Add ½ cup of condensed milk and stir over hot water for about one minute until it thickens. Remove from the stove; add vanilla and sugar; stir smooth and add the nuts. Drop onto paper or an oiled pan and allow to cool.

Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk is splendid for desserts, too—and for icings, hot breads, salad dressings, etc. Get it from your grocer today. And use it in coffee, as well as in cooking. It gives true cream-and-sugar richness—at one-half the cost!... And it keeps fresh for days after the can is opened—even without [illegible]

Where's Emily? by CAROLYN WELLS Author of "The MYSTERY GIRL"

Story of a Girl Who Did Just What She Chose and Then Took Flight

Emily Duane, an "ultra modern," is about to marry Rodney Sayre, conservative, and scion of an old New England family. Emily, parentless, is extremely wealthy, charming, high-spirited and impulsive. What she wants, she wants—and gets.

Novelty allures her and Hindu mysticism is her latest fad. In her enthusiasm she places a clause in her will bequeathing a large sum to Swami Lal Singh, her teacher.

Two days before the wedding Emily decides to have a rehearsal of the ceremony. Burton Lamb, best-man-to-be; Betty Bailey and Nell Harding, bridesmaids; Polly Pennington, matron of honor, and her husband, Jim; Pete Gibby, Betty Bailey's beau; Emily, Rodney and Emily's Aunt Judy are talking things over, and among the subjects under discussion are the Reverend Mr. Garner, who is to officiate; "Spinks," an undertaker, whom Emily has designated as "wedding director," and—Emily's bequest to the Hindu.

Lamb starts to berate Emily for making the bequest. She explains that the will is automatically cancelled when she becomes Rodney's wife.

The Swami overhears, and he is incensed, but says nothing.

Emily then gets a phone message that Mrs. Kitty Laurence, a dear friend, has become a mother, and she impulsively drops everything to go to the hospital and kiss the new-born "for luck." She insists on going alone, and instructs Rodney to evade telling the others where she is.

Meanwhile Abel Collins, an old family friend of the Duanes, has joined the party. When he warns Sayre of Emily's "pig-headedness," Rodney laughs, and says he "can make allowances."

"Spinks" is ready to start rehearsal and everyone is looking for Emily. Rodney follows instructions, tries to evade the issue, but finally tells that Emily has gone to the hospital. Just then Pearl, Emily's maid, comes in with news

CHAPTER VI.

"MISS BETTY," said the maid "ma'am, some while ago Mr. Pennington, he telephoned to know was his wife here. And I tole him she wasn't."

"How long ago, Pearl?"

"Lak 'bout half an hour maybe, maybe not so long, maybe a quarter hour."

"That's funny. The Penningtons went home together didn't they, Aunt Judy?"

"Yes, Betty. I said good-by to the two, as they left the house."

"Well, then," and Burton Lamb sized up the situation "Emily took Mrs. Pennington with her over to the hospital to see the new baby, and they've no idea how the time has gone by."

"That's Emily all over!" declared Nell Harding. "Of course, Burt, you're right. How can anybody be so thoughtless and so careless of other people's convenience?"

"Well," Mr. Spinks said decidedly, "either we put this thing over or we don't. I suggest we go right through with it and we'll just have time if we begin at once, and then you folks can coach Miss Duane and Mrs. Pennington in their parts afterward. Like's not they'll come in while we're at it. Hey, Mr. Sayre, come along here. Mr. Garner, you get up there in the bower, will you?"

Burton Lamb went back to the lounge to tell Rodney of the decision, and to his surprise the obdurate bridegroom refused to budge.

"You see, Lambkin," Rod said, and Lamb always knew that when the diminutive was used there was about to be a tussle, "the truth is, I promised Emily I wouldn't budge from this sofa until she came back."

"Gosh, old man, she didn't mean that literally! What ails you?"

"Well, I'm taking it literally, see? Now, you go on and hold your confounded rehearsal. I refuse to be in it without Emily—"

"But, Rod, you must. And, too, Emily and Mrs. Pennington will know their stunts without rehearsing. But you won't. You don't want to come a cropper at the big show, and you sure will, if you don't get onto the part."

"Emily will tell me just what to do, and I'm not such a stupid that I can't catch on. And if I make a terrible break, they'll forgive a clumsy bridegroom."

Rod settled back in the corner of the sofa and lit another cigarette.

Burton Lamb knew Sayre well. He knew that if he bullied him long enough he would give in, but it might be a protracted and wearing process. And the Rehearser couldn't wait.

"You're a brute," he told Rodney. "I haven't time to argue with you, but as I'm your best man, I've got to get you through somehow, I suppose. All right, I'll do your act myself, and then I can coach you. For Heaven's sake, when Emily comes, shoot over to the drawing room as fast as you can. You may be in time."

Lamb returned and made up the most plausible yarn he could think of, and advised Spinks to whiz things through.

The Reverend Mr. Garner was clearly disturbed at the merry mess that was being made of a solemn ceremony, but little attention was paid to him in the whirlwind of the Rehearser's movements.

"You," Spinks said to Aunt Judy, "please stand up here and personate the matron of honor."

Spinks suddenly found he had no bride!

Betty was determined to get letter perfect in her own part and Nell exulted in any contretemps that threatened the perfect performance of Emily's wedding pageant.

Wildly, Spinks looked around. No servants could be seen, their peeping had been strictly forbidden, with the exception of Pearl, always a privileged character.

Catching sight of a human being, the Rehearser grabbed at her as the only possible last straw and pushed her into the bride at Aunt Judy's side.

"Never mind the matron of honor," he shouted, dancing about in an agony of haste and excitement "You've got to give the bride away ain't you? And you've got to have a bride to give away! Well, this is it."

With the deftness of a lightning change actor, he threw the long veil of white tarlatan over Pearl's kinky head, and as her startled eyes rolled heavenward, he thrust into her arm a long shower bouquet that had done duty at many rehearsals.

"Best thing, too," he exulted. "Now, you Pearl, you pay strict attention to everything I say, and then you can tell your mistress exactly what she is to do. See?"

Being nobody's fool, Pearl saw, and realized that this was no joke, but that she was to be of real help to her beloved Miss Emily, and she put her whole mind on the task.

She slipped her hand through the arm of Aunt Judy, as instructed, and stood waiting, every sense alert to obtain all possible information to pass along to the real bride later.

Aunt Judy too caught the spirit of the thing and if some of the bridesmaids giggled at the ill-assorted assembly the principals did not.

Burton Lamb, doubling as bridegroom and best man, stood back of a tall palm, awaiting the signal to show himself.

But when the opening strains of Mendelssohn were jerked out of the grand piano by the mechanical talent of Spinks' assistant, it was too much, and excepting, perhaps, the minister, the whole party went off in peals of laughter.

Even this did not bring Rodney Sayre to the scene.

He was thinking deeply. He well knew Emily's wilful ways, her sudden yielding to a whim, but he didn't think she would forget or ignore the rehearsal of their wedding.

He was not at all angry at her, or even annoyed, but he couldn't quite understand.

Well, at any rate he could obey orders. She had said, "Don't budge from that sofa until I come back," and nothing short of an irresistible force would would make him budge.

Nor was this merely a dogged or slavish obedience to orders.

It was only that Rod loved his Emily so truly and so deeply that he wanted to do as she asked him, now and always.

A step on the veranda was followed by the entrance of Jim Pennington.

He looked at Sayre in astonishment.

"What are you doing, flocking in here alone? Is the rehearsal over? I called in to take Polly home."

Lighting a cigarette, he dropped into an easy chair near Rodney, who sat up straight in astonishment.

"Polly? Your wife? Did you think she was here?"

"Yes, sure. To do her part in the rehearsal, you know. What seems to be the matter with you?"

He looked at Rod with a puzzled expression.

"Polly hasn't been here," Sayre said, "since she went away with you, after tea. Emily isn't here, either?"

"Where are they?" Pennington demanded, as if the other had them concealed somewhere.

"I don't know, Pennington, I'm sure. And I wouldn't say it to the others, but—well, I'm a little anxious."

"Anxious about what? I don't get it. But, what is to pay, anyhow? Surely, that's the wedding march! Why are you in here? And where's Emily?"

"I'll tell you all I know. And of course, everything is all right. You see, some friend of Emily's is over at the hospital, having a baby."

"Yes, I know, Kitty Laurence."

"That's the one. Well, the child arrived, and nothing would do but Emily must fly over to kiss the youngster for luck."

"Oh, that's it," and Pennington drew a sigh of relief. "That's where Polly is then. They're lost to the world, cuddling that baby—"

Pennington stopped suddenly, remembering how Pauline was affected by children.

"You see, old man," he went on, in the lower tone, "our own kiddy died—soon after its birth, and Polly never got over it. If she sees or touches a little child, she's nervously upset for days afterwards. Yet she can't keep away from them, and if she and Emily are over there, with Kitty Laurence's new baby—well, I'd better go over and take Polly home, that's all."

Sayre looked at the nervously working face, and deemed it better to offer no word of sympathy, or consolation. He knew vaguely of this tragedy in Pennington's life, but he didn't feel sufficiently acquainted with the man to talk of it, nor was this the opportunity, for the laughing crowd might come in at any minute.

"If you go over there, Penn," he said using for the first time the abbreviation usual with their crowd, "for Heaven's sake send Emily home. I'd go myself, only I promised her I'd hold the fort here till she got back. But we're not sure they're there."

"Bound to be, Sayre. Guess I'll go along over."

"Just telephone first, will you? I'd do it myself, only I don't want to get up."

Pennington looked at the other quizzically.

"Do you mean to say you take her orders as literally as that?"

"Why not? It's only a trifle anyway, and as she went out she said 'Don't budge from this sofa until I come back,' so I'm not budging."

"And they're rehearsing without bride or groom?"

"Also without the matron of honor!"

"Pshaw, it isn't a rehearsal at all, then."

"Oh, yes it is, Pearl represents the bride—"

"No!" and Pennington shook with laughter "I say, I must see that."

He rose and started for the hall, the other side of which was the drawing room.

"Telephone first, Pen, there's a good chap."

"All right, I will."

Pausing at the telephone in the hall, Pennington called up the hospital.

It took some time to get the connection, and longer yet, to obtain speech with Nurse Graham, who was in charge of Mrs. Laurence.

But at last Pennington's questions were answered.

Instead of going to the drawing room to see the spectacle of Pearl as a bride, Pennington retraced his steps to the lounge where Sayre still sat on the sofa.

"Neither Emily nor Polly has been at the hospital at all," he said, with a bewildered look on his face as he sat down beside Sayre.

"What?"

"The nurse told me. She said that Emily telephoned and said she would be right over, but she never appeared. Of Polly she has heard nothing."

"Where's Emily??" said Rodney Sayre, a look of awful fear coming into his eyes.

How About Dumb Dates? By Beatrice Fairfax

SHE APPRECIATES THE SHY, AWKWARD YOUTH

AND SO WON A FINE, SUCCESSFUL HUSBAND

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage

HOW discouraged some girls do get about modern men!

Here are complaints from girls who are tired of waiting for romance.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes 'Nan.' "Are there any nice men left? I did meet one on my vacation, but he got away. He apologized because he didn't pet!

"Most of the girls I know have followed the petting trail, although I am sure there are many girls who do not pet. Here's hoping they have better luck than I in finding non-petters."

"I am a girl in my teens," writes Dickie. "What I can't understand about most young men is why, during their early life, they want to be present at every petting party and have a wild time, then expect to marry a nice, plain girl who is not a promiscuous petter.

"What worth-while girl wants to marry a man who has wasted most of his youth running after wild women?"

"I have met many young men from time to time," writes "No-Go." "But after they bring me home, I never see them again. Why? Because I will not allow them to put their arms around me or kiss me.

"My sisters, who have many friends, laugh at me and tell me to wake up. But I can never believe any man who would wish a good wife would select a girl who would take petting from every man."

A serious young man of ambition, standards and ideals seldom possesses the social grace of a movie hero or even the facination of a jazz hound in the eyes of the average girl. His mind is on other things besides the latest dance steps.

Because of his very respect for girls he may be shy and awkward in their presence. The average, fun-loving girl, who doesn't take the trouble to look deep into character, dismisses this gawky youth, this shy young man, as a bore and dumb date.

Girls turn instead to the entertaining [illegible] the latest song hits on the tip of his tongue. Then, if his ethics, principles and sense of honor prove as lightweight as his dancing steps and line of talk, a wail goes up that there are not any good men in the world.

'The Catspaw'; Stuart Tells Sylvia He Will Wait for Her

Joyce Ackerman, society woman and wife of Vance Ackerman, a rich broker, appeals to a mutual friend, Alexander Ladd, a successful lawyer, to help her in her battle with Margot Liggett, who has won her husband's affections. Ladd persuades Mrs. Ackerman to install Sylvia Bryant, his stenographer, in her home as her social secretary. Ackerman admires Sylvia's beauty and charm, and Stuart Gifford, a cousin, falls in love with her. Ackerman takes her to the theatre; Margot sees them and they adjourn to a cabaret.

Ackerman starts drinking and to get him away Sylvia feigns illness and he takes her to the Ackerman home. She hears a soft knocking on her door.

She opens the door and comes face to face with Gifford. She tries to send him away when Ackerman appears and the two men engage in a fist fight. The next morning Sylvia is on the point of leaving the house for good when Mrs. Ackerman confesses the real reason why she engaged her and begs her to stay. Sylvia agrees.

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER 18.

AGAIN Sylvia and Stuart Gifford were alone on the overhanging ledge of rock; Stuart's prediction as to the rising of the mammoth yellow moon was magnificently fulfilled. Gorgeously, it came rising up the heavens; each was satisfied for a time to absorb the beauty of the scene, the glamor of the night without the clumsy aid of tame, inadequate words.

He sat so near her that her warmth and tender fragrance created a little aura about him like the caress of flower petals. This was the hour for which he had waited and longed; now that it was here there was with its poignant sweetness something that disarmed him of much of his easy flow of flattery.

A thin bluish veil of [illegible] passed over the yellow disc in the sky, dimming the brilliance of a soft, hidden glow. A small tang of coolness was in the air and Sylvia, wrapped in a silken shawl, instinctively—unconsciously—leaned toward Gifford for warmth. Without effort, automatically natural, his arm went around her shoulders.

She made no protest, sat close to him, unaffectedly comforting, secure against the vastness of the night.

They were silent for a long time. Gifford was the first to break it. "So many things happen to us in life and are forgotten, but this is one thing I'll never forget—being here—with you . . . tonight." His voice was a low throb. "Sylvia dear, you feel it, too, don't you? The wonder and the magic of it all . . . it makes everything else seem so far away and unimportant. . . ."

"Yes," she said softly.

"We might be the last two people left in the world—I the last man, you the last woman. Masters of everything . . . masters of ourselves' free to do as we willed without someone around the next corner or in the next room deciding our conduct and manners and morals for us. That's a big idea, Sylvia. Freedom! Only the brave souls find it, but it's sweet . . . Precious . . ."

"Have you ever found it?" she asked.

"Not yet, completely — not the big surge and sweep of it. But I could—" his voice lowered—"with you."

Again, between them, silence. They were too far away from everyone, the strangeness and the stillness, the virile scent of the dark, silent forest—all combined to dissolve Sylvia's jaunty independence.

Close to her was the only thing—the presence of Stuart Gifford—that seemed to link her with the little familiar world of the past; his solid flesh and bone, the magnetic glow of his being, warmed and soothed her, quelled the faint shiverings of apprehension.

In some back part of her mind she had been wondering for days whether she might not be falling in love with Stuart Gifford. Slipping into it, rather; a gradually growing attachment to his personality.

The encircling pressure of his arm increased, and Sylvia felt him drawing her closer; his face bent over and their lips were but inches apart . . . in another instant they would meet . . . A feeling of helplessness, or indecision, swept over her and she trembled slightly. Subsciously, with an age-old instinct of self-protection, the urge of resistance came to her automatically. No desire to surrender existed. She sensed the flickering signals of caution.

"Please . . . don't . . ."

A security, a low note of confidence was in his voice. "This is all like a beautiful dream to me, dear," he said. "I can scarcely believe that at last, you are in my arms. In one more second, Sylvia, darling, I am going to kiss you—it's going to be a trip to Heaven!"

"Don't, please!"

There was a gentleness in her voice, yet unmistakably a quality of sincere protest, an icy something that penetrated Gifford's ardor like a thin blade. His face, his voice hardened a trifle.

"How are you going to stop me?"

"I'm not—I can't. You're stronger than I am, and if you want to kiss me you'll probably do it," she said. "Only I don't want you to, and I shouldn't think there'd be any fun in kissing a girl against her will. It's—it's such a cheap thing to do, don't you think?"

He did not release her from the firmness of his embrace but his lips came no nearer; a dwindling, chilling silence existed for a space of time between them.

"You're not ready yet, Sylvia—but I can wait," he said at last, with a balked sort of energy. "I don't want you if I have to take you—cold. No use getting a wrong start. But you'll come to me, dear; you'll have to, because I want you so very very much. I never wanted anybody, anything, as much as I want you. And I want you to feel what I feel. Oh, Sylvia, you don't know what you're missing! But I'll wait. I won't spoil everything, only tell me, Sylvia, do you care for me — a little—don't you?"

She was silent, but he appeared to find encouragement in the fact that she did not repulse him further.

Fashion Fads

"Cutting a Melon" has always been the occasion for rejoicing. And so designers of purses are rejoicing the heart of the woman who seeks distinctly different handbags by cutting lustrous black [illegible] in oblong melon shapes and using narrow pipings of watersnakes as a trim. A snakeskin band also borders the opening of this snappy bag.

Finding Fringe in unexpected places seems to be a game of those who seek to "keep up" with feminine fashions. One of the latest models in flesh crepe de chine dance bloomers has a godet-shaped trimming of silk fringe up each leg. Another interesting feature of these novel little bloomers is the broad silk elastic, fastening each leg and also forming a stocking support.

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Mich.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."—MRS. E. F. MAURINE IS FOULED

Helen Delivers Questionable Blow; Review of Ella Wheeler Wilcox Runs On and On and On

Perhaps in all literature there is no scene that touches the heart like the meeting of Maurine and Helen, after Maurine had returned from the woods with chinkus. Hoy Montaine. Here we have Maurine, always courteous, hearing from her friend and home guest, the old, old story. Handsome Vivian Dangerfield, Maurine's dream man, had—

But let Maurine tell it—

Helen started forward, gliding slowly
And broke the breathless silence, speaking slowly,
"Maurine, Maurine!" she murmured, and again,
"Maurine, my own sweet friend, Maurine!" And then,
Laying her love light hands upon my head,
She leaned and looked into my eyes, and said,
With tone that bore her joy in every tone
And weighed with fragrance, "His is mine alone
And I am his—all his—his very own,
So pledged this hour.
I could not wait to tell you of my bliss;
I want your blessing, sweetheart, and your kiss!"

Did Maurine cry out, or sock Helen? No, Maurine was too much of a gentleman for that. Instead, she—

When Sinclair Lewis created a rhyming health commissioner in "Babbitt," he must have stimulated the profession to bigger and better efforts. The following verse is from the Journal of the American Medical Association—

The cholera germ
In a wee bottled worm—
By boiling the drink you can kill um;
But stain him with dope
And squint through the scope,
And, oh! what a pretty spicilum.

He grows well in broth;
It turns curled and wroth.
He grows in latex, too—you tell um
It ain't like milk—
And he scorns him a dainty flagellum.

This cute little sphere
In masses so queer
Is work o'er comfort to spoil;
A cinch to sock us,
This staphylococcus—
And oh to give us a boil!

The bacillus of pest,
Along with the rest—
He rides on the rat-carried flea.
A tryin' to kill us,
The little fuss—
He ain't gonna do it—NOT ME!

RADIO DIALOG

By C. WILLIAM RADOS

WE feel really flattered. Some ten days ago we made a suggestion about improving a broadcast station. To our great surprise the improvement was made and the broadcaster spent several hundred dollars on it. (No, we didn't get a share, but you can know we will next time.)

Encouraged by this thought we offer a real gem. As everyone knows, there has been a great decrease in the number of programs used lately. Old worn-out programs are being dug out of the attic and rebroadcast. Listeners are listlessly lightly listening lesser. So something has got to be done quickly or even sooner.

* * *

How is it that the great cigar industry was built up? By giving coupons. Every time a cigar is bought, fifty cents worth of green and yellow bills are issued. When you go into a store for fruit, cheese, or liver, you get legal stamps. On bargain days they issue twice as many coupons.

Think of the great public benefaction. Young men and young women would listen to the same program twice. They would beg their friends to save used programs for them. Premiums would be given. For every 100 used, but in good condition, programs, a perambulator would be given.

* * *

When a customer has listened to one hundred consecutive programs and is still alive, offer a gold-mounted umbrella handle. After he has listened to another hundred programs give him the rest of the umbrella. Then for $4.89 for packing and mailing range with the weather bureau for some rain so he can use the prize.

* * *

At the last minute comes notice that Sears Roebuck intends to broadcast. This throws all plans into dismay as it is well known that S-R will undercut everyone on programs.

Types of Amplifiers.

There are three basic types of amplifiers—resistance coupled, impedance coupled and transformer coupled. The first type really does do very well at the lowest cost, but it is decidedly limited in volume. The second type is a trifle better on volume. The third type provides all the volume required, provided (and this is the objection) that the transformers are big, well made and fully capable of handling the necessary wide range of frequencies uniformly and fully.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

AUGUST is supposed to be the hottest month of the year and people all over the country are thinking up new ways to overcome the heat. Thousands of young men are trying to stay cool by keeping company with Eskimo girls.

ONE fellow went up to Greenland and got himself a couple of ice-cold mamas.

AN Alaska flapper is the most inexpensive companion in the world. You never have to take them to swell restaurants. Whenever they get hungry you just throw them a fish.

OF course, there are other ways to refresh yourself on a hot afternoon. A Chicago man purchased a baseball bat and knocked himself cold with it.

HE also bought a couple of horses so that he can lie underneath them and keep out of the sun.

HE wears his raccoon coat all Summer by putting ice in his pockets.

HE bought ten dollars' worth of artificial snow last week and sprinkled it in bed. He woke up the next morning with pneumonia.

EVEN his legs were frost-bitten.

HIS house felt so chilly that he went into the parlor and put a blanket over the polar bear rug.

THE snow even fooled his wife. She got hysterics and wept two quarts of ice water.

THERE were so many flakes on the carpet that the hunting dog was looking for jack rabbits in the living room.

THEIR little kid took one look at the floor and then went up on the roof and waited for Santa Claus.

HIS twin sister wouldn't go to bed until she'd hung up her stocking.

BOTH the children came very near perishing. The maid started the vacuum cleaner and they almost froze to death in the blizzard.

THE snow was so realistic that even the thermometers were registering zero.

OUTSIDE, the heat was intense, but they overcame it by taking down the tents.

IT'S absolutely unnecessary to be hot in the Summer. All you need is a little imagination and lots of cool weather.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Best Joke," Boston Evening American.

"My goodness!" exclaimed the old lady on the bus, "isn't the traffic thick?"

Famous Actresses

FRANCES BARTON was only fourteen years old when she lost her mother. Her father, a cobbler, was very poor and "Fanny" led a precarious existence. Sometimes she sold flowers in the streets of London, earning the name "Nosegay Fan"; sometimes she hung about the tavern doors singing and reciting. Occasionally she was fortunate enough to get into the better class Inns where she recited passages from the poets and the people were so attracted by the plaintiveness of her voice and the beauty of her face that they showered coins upon her.

It wasn't long before Fanny Barton obtained a hearing on the stage. She was ambitious and had a flair for acting and reciting. Through Theophilus Cibber she secured her first part at the Haymarket, Miranda, in the "Busy Body." The critics praised her highly and predicted a great future for her.

Her appearance at the Drury Lane was successful, but she did not advance rapidly because the best parts were in the hands of Mrs. Pritchard and Mrs. Clive, who were very popular. Fired with ambition Fanny employed masters to teach her French, music and elocution. She fell in love with her music master, a Mr. James Abington, and married. This union was not a happy one. Abington was jealous and exacting. As her popularity grew his jealousy increased until it became unbearable. They parted by mutual consent. A written agreement was entered into whereby she undertook to pay him a yearly sum on condition that he never came near her or bothered her again.

At the end of the Drury Lane season she went to Dublin to try her fortune. The people there soon realized that she was a comic actress of the very first rank. She played Kitty in "High Life Below Stairs" at Tate Wilkinson's benefit and the audience went into raptures over her. She became the rage. Within a few days after this performance her clothes, her cap and her elegant manners were the topic of conversation. She remained in Dublin five years, after which she returned to London and accepted an invitation from Garrick to join his company at Drury Lane.

Fanny Barton proved to the Londoners that the accounts of her triumphs in Ireland were not exaggerated. She was the original representative of at least thirty characters, her crowning glory being Lady Teazle. This ex-flower girl of obscure origin became the dictator of fashion. Women of society came to her for advice on styles. She numbered famous men of the time among her friends. Dr. Johnson was one of her admirers and so was Horace Walpole.

The last days of Mrs. Abington were spent in card-playing and the enjoyment of the society of her fashionable friends.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOMETIMES I wonder why we Occidental wives pity the harem-woman and glory in our "freedom."

* * *

The Oriental marriage may not be so soul-satisfying as our love match; but it is usually more lasting, because it is only a "part-time" job, instead of a whole-time job.

The harem-wife is a "specialist," and would undoubtedly resent the idea of having to be her husband's cook, valet, nurse, inspiration, sweetheart, pal and guardian.

If she happens to be the houri who dances for his amusement in the evening, she doesn't have to get up to fix his bath and coddle his eggs and find his turban, the next morning. If her job is to weave his rugs, cook his meals or mix his sauces, she doesn't have to jump into her glad rags and make herself fascinating when he comes home to dinner.

* * *

She may not see him very often in the evenings—but she almost never has to see him before breakfast! And she has nearly all her afternoons off, in which to go to a matinee, shampoo her hair, cream her face, or read a good book.

* * *

Seeing one's husband only one or two evenings a week might make marriage a little uncertain—and lonely. And, yet, it might make it seem more like a continuous courtship, and less like Coventry.

* * *

No doubt a wife OUGHT to want to see her husband every single day and hour and minute of her life. But—Shush—she DOESN'T!

There are a thousand times when no woman—not even a vamp—wants a MAN around!

She doesn't want to see him when she is perspiring over the kitchen range and working out a new recipe. Or when she is washing her hair, or putting the freckle-cream on her nose or taking reducing exercises, or trying to shorten a skirt, with her mouth full of pins.

* * *

She doesn't long to have him come bounding in, when she is in the midst of a beauty-nap or a face massage, or a delicious little gossip-fest with a woman friend.

She doesn't yearn to have him hanging around when her family have dropped in and are pointing out her defects as a housekeeper; or when she is discussing her "soul" with the handsome young clergyman, or when she has a neuralgic headache, or wants to "go into the Silence" and work out a spiritual problem, or is absorbed in a fascinating novel, or struggling to make the oven draw, or trying a new make-up.

* * *

Oh yes, there are hours and minutes and whole days when a man is utterly de trop, in a woman's life, and when every wife wishes that marriage were a part-time job! But you could never make any man BELIEVE THAT!

Human Material Analyzed by Wise Executives; Why

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—We have been hearing much about industrial research, which, admittedly, is important. But is not human research still more important? Some progress is being made in the latter field, and more will be made by and by.

B. C. Forbes.

Uncountable tragedies occur every year through school and college graduates taking up work for which they are totally unsuited. Also, many employes roam from job to job, without making any earnest effort to discover what their inheritent qualifications fit them for.

This column recently told something about the Personnel Research Federation of New York, which is co-operating with educational institutions, employers and others to bring about happier results in the linking of youths and men to congenial employment. Philadelphia also has an organization functioning in this same untilled field. Only it deals more with individuals than with other organizations.

George I. Bodine, Jr., its head, explains that it "is the outgrowth of some twenty years' experience on the part of its president in selecting boys for college, for scholarship and for vocations following graduation.

"This voluntary service on his part proved of such value that the demands upon his time grew beyond the ability of any one person to meet them. Accordingly he surrounded himself with a group of trained and experienced men and women and incorporated the Human Research Corporation."

Our big industrial corporations today subject their raw materials and other materials to frequent and thorough analysis. Department stores, mail order houses and other successful merchants similarly conduct most rigid tests of the merchandise supplied them.

Yet, how many businesses attempt to make equally thorough-going analysis of the human material they engage? Since all business springs from men, surely it is important that human material, before being accepted, should be analyzed and appraised as carefully and painstakingly as raw materials or manufactured goods.

What can intelligently directed human research accomplish? The claims made are that, among other things:

"In so far as psychology makes possible, it determines mental and other abilities and defects.

"In those phases of personality, as yet unmeasurable, it applies the common sense methods of analytical questioning long in use by psychologists, educators and employers.

"It evaluates interests, abilities and personality traits, in reference to self-improvement, courses of study, type of work, or any particular position, etc.

"It interprets the dominant factors in their inter-relation, in an effort to picture, in outline at least, the complete personality."

Such examination, analysis and description are held to be valuable to employers and executives.

"As a means of determining the fitness of an individual for any given position, as indicated by his ability, temperamental and emotional fitness, soundness of economic ideas, capacity for loyalty or tendency toward irritability and dissatisfaction;

"As a means toward the better understanding of employes, so that their problems may be more clearly outlined and the effect of out-of-plant interests, mala justments, worries, etc., dealt with in a more intelligent way;

"As a means of finding the uninterested and dissatisfied employe and relocating him in a job where he will be happy, do better work, produce more and be more loyal, if such an adjustment is possible."

Why industry? Why banking? Why commerce? Are they not merely a means to an end, and is not that end the well-being and happiness of the human family?

How many human activities, therefore, are to be accounted more important than the scientific, sympathetic analysis and study of human beings and all-round cooperation to guide human beings into that line of endeavor which will afford them the fullest scope for their talents and yield them maximum satisfaction?

BOSTON "L" IS RUN AT LOSS FOR MONTH

In the face of the latest increase in fares on the Boston Elevated, "L" trustees report for June that cost of service exceeded revenue by $92,917, against $1,662 for the like month a year ago.

The road carried 29,167,572 revenue passengers during the month, compared with 29,831,144 in June, 1926, with an average fare per passenger of 9.271 cents this year, against 9.284 cents a year ago. Of the June, 1927, passengers 17.75 per cent. were 5 and 6-cent passengers. A year ago the rate was 17.43 per cent.

Of 4,512,226 miles operated in June 463,927 were motor bus miles. A year ago buses operated 404,352 of the 4,881,160 miles for the month.

Coal consumption in June was cut to 13,947 tons from the June, 1926, total of 15,287 tons.

NEW ENGLAND STOCKS ARE OF BEST SORT

From a banker who is a director of a number of railroad and industrial corporations: "Not a day passes that you don't hear such stocks as New Haven, Woolen, Rubber, referred to as New England stocks, meaning that these stocks are issues held largely by people in New England. And this may be partly true. But I have seen list of shareholders of New York Central, Steel, General Motors, Atchison and other large and well established corporations and find that New England is a very large holder of these and other issues never referred to as New England stocks.

"Amount of Rubber, New Haven and Woolen held in New England is but a small percentage of the value of other securities held in that prosperous section. When there is a severe break in a so-called New England stock the depreciation in market value is so small in comparison with the wealth of New England that you couldn't find the loss with a microscope. It is the great diversification of industry in New England that has offset the loss in certain branches of industry many times over."

STANDARD AND BRITISH TO WAR IN U.S.

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Dispatches indicate British Royal Dutch Shell Company and the American Standard of New York (New England) and Vacuum will fight on American soil. As Standard of New York covers New England, there was at first some talk that the battle might be staged in these northeastern States. Report now is that Cleveland is to see $5,000,000 spent there on plants and stations by Sir Henri Deterding interests. Thus Ohio will be "dark and bloody ground," industrially speaking, for the first time since the days Daniel Boone and Kit Carson "shot up ol' Kaintuck'" and Hoosierdom.

Pliny Jewell, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, Boston financier, will preside at the sixteenth annual convention of the association, which will be held in Seattle, Wash., Sept. 25 to 30. Visiting Boston bankers will take a post convention cruise to Alert Bay, the Land of Totem Poles and Ocean Falls. The modern version of the totem pole of our Indian predecessors is to be found on the floor of the Boston and other stock exchanges.

"New issue of currency smaller; future dollar bills to be two-thirds size of present" was the gist of headlines appearing in numerous newspapers all over the United States this week. Readers of this column had that news the 19th of last June.

Winslow Russell, vice-president of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company of Hartford, tells me he started boosting New England back in 1871, the day he was born down on Nantucket. "I am going to keep on boosting New England," he declares, right to the point.

News in yesterday's financial section of the Boston Evening American that A. H. Wiggin, former Boston banker, chairman of the Chase National Bank, second largest in the country, was eliminating the teller's cage for a new-styled counter, was especially interesting. It is also worthy of note that, when the new bank opens August 15, you will be able to visit it under cover all the way from Boston, Chicago or St. Louis.

A business reporting service this week says: "Building contracts awarded during the past week amounted to $8,283,000, compared with upwards of 10,000,000 in 1926 and $15,000,000 in 1925."

It would perhaps be more to the point, for purpose of comparison, to state the average for previous weeks of the current year was $7,839,400. As a matter of fact, the F. W. Dodge Corporation, which furnishes the weekly statistical statements of building used in all newspapers, is at my suggestion embodying in its tables regularly hereafter the average for previous weeks of the current year. Vice President Thomas S. Holden, thanking me for the suggestion, says: "This improves the value of the table and at the same time preserves its customary form."

Chicago is to emulate Boston, the first city to have "specialists" in New York Stock Exchange issues, a movement instituted here by Secretary George A. Rich. The Chicago Stock Exchange next Monday will open specialist books in Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co. stocks, first on Chicago floor, and if successful the plan will be extended until it embraces every stock that is listed both there and on the New York exchange of which there are twenty-three. Step is first tangible move to increase trading on the Chicago Stock Exchange and to widen scope of activities. Other plans are afoot for money post and eventually stock loan post.

Frank A. Sieberling, "little Napoleon of the rubber industry," lets me know over "long distance" today that he does not favor a merger of Goodyear Tire with U. S. Rubber. We had already expressed doubt as to the authenticity of the report the Akron magnate favored such a combination.

The electric chair for dangerous microbes. "Electric Heat in Industry," Boston Edison publication tells how the New England Creamery Products Company purifies milk by electric heat, an innovation that will interest many. It would be a popular device if it could be installed where the freshly-purified product could be sold direct to the consumer.

Negroes Are Guests of Whites at Big Georgia Picnic

Woodland, Ga., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—An outing designed to strengthen the bonds of amity and good will between white citizens and negroes here witnessed the attendance of several thousand persons of both races. The gathering was believed to be the first negro home-coming ever given by a white citizenry.

Prominent members of both races delivered addresses in evidencing the friendship of the two in this part of the State. The occasion was planned primarily so the people of Talbot County might manifest their appreciation of the loyalty and industry of the negroes, few of whom have migrated.

A bountiful barbecue was tendered the negroes, followed by athletic events and a baseball game in which only the negroes participated.

PORTUGAL COUP QUELLED AFTER GUN FIGHT

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Another attempted coup d'etat in Portugal has been quelled after dramatic incidents, in one of which President Carmona and members of the Cabinet were under fire.

The movement, instituted by a military group displeased with recent Cabinet changes, was begun with the object of placing Naval Commander Filomeno Da Camara in power.

Three officers forced their way into the ministerial council chamber in the President's house and handed General Carmona a letter demanding the resignation of the government.

Lieutenant Moraes Sarmento attempted to give the views of the army on the political situation. The Minister of War refused to enter into discussion, accused Lieutenant Sarmento of printing insulting statements and ordered his arrest.

Lieutenant Sarmento drew a revolver and fired repeatedly at the group of visitors. One shot wounded the secretary of the Finance Minister and another punctured the clothing of the Minister of Justice.

President Carmona threw himself upon the lieutenant while the latter was firing, but Sarmento escaped. Later he was apprehended.

Previous to this army officers attempted to visit various regiments of the Lisbon garrison to incite the troops to rebellion.

ADD MILLIONS TO U. S. BUDGET

Rapid City, S. D., Aug 13 (A.P.) An increase in government expenditures next year above first estimates was put up to President Coolidge today by Director Lord of the budget who came into the Black Hills with a tentative budget.

Various special items have contributed to swell the tentative estimate $125,000,000 above the limit of $3,300,000,000 set by the President last June for government expenditures in the coming year.

Whatever comes of these special appropriations which are before the President, General Lord gave assurance that next year's budget would carry funds for the first year's work on the additional cruisers authorized by Congress.

It is not believed the extra appropriations will interfere with prospective tax reduction plans. The Treasury surplus of $600,000,000, in the opinion of the President, leaves an ample margin for a tax slash.

While Director Lord did not mention what items went to make up the additional $125,000,000, it is presumed that some of this would be for flood relief.

The President also was interested today in receiving a report on farm conditions in the Far and Middle West which was presented to him by Eugene Meyer, newly-appointed chairman of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

"I'LL FILL JAIL!" IS DEFI TO OHIO MINERS IN FRAY

St. Clairsville, O., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Strained relations between non-union coal miners and union sympathizers flared anew in this district today when union officials were confronted with responsibility for the beating of O. V. Nichols, Wheeling, W. Va., taxicab driver.

Colonel L. S. Conely of the Ohio National Guard, who is investigating mine conditions for Governor Donahey, notified union officials that unless instigators of the attack were turned over to authorities he would hold them responsible and "would fill the county jail if necessary." Nichols suffered a crushed jawbone and a knife wound in his shoulder during an attack.

TRIP BY PLANE SHOWS VALUE OF AIRPORT

A trip from the Boston Airport to New York and return is the most convincing witness of the tremendous commercial value of the field to New England, says Will Brown, an executive of C. F. Hovey Company who recently brought to his store the first cargo of dresses ever delivered to a New England store by air express. Mr. Brown describes his flight, and the attitude of his fellow travellers for the Boston Evening American.

By WILL BROWN
Advertising Manager, C. F. Hovey Company

It was my first airplane flight, yet, five minutes after we had left the ground, all suggestion of fear or anxiety had left. There was a reassuring, comforting drone from the three powerful motors that might have been compared to the droning of bees, magnified many times.

Will Brown

My companions, one of whom was Richard Ehrlich, a business associate, three women and two other men, also were very much at ease. If anything, there was an air of curiosity about the take-off.

In almost less than the time it takes to write it, we were in the air and on our way. For about a half hour or more, scenes of unusual beauty captured our interest. Later, when we had passed beyond familiar regions, there was a general settling down among the passengers.

A COMFORTABLE TRIP.

Frankly, the feeling as we sailed through space was more reassuring than the feeling one has when driving or traveling by train. I know of no other mode of travel, aside from a voyage by boat, that brings more comfort or feeling of personal safety.

The setting of the sun, and later, the trip over New York City in the darkness, were the two outstanding pleasures of the trip. Imagine sailing at a tremendous rate directly in line with the golden setting sun. Then imagine flying in darkness over thousands and thousands of electric lights, twinkling like gems and bringing to you the thought that you were above the heavens rather than below.

Our landing at Hadley Field in the dark was perfect. There was no more excitement to it than in stepping off a train, and I feel that more than one of us was sorry that the journey ended so soon.

DEMONSTRATES VALUE.

The return trip was even more valuable for the demonstration it gave of the possibility of regular flights in bad weather. Conditions were adverse. There was a stiff wind, and if an amateur ever had occasion to have fear, it was then. Yet the ship sailed along on a level keel.

On the trip was James Calvert, merchandise manager of the C. F. Hovey Company. He had been a member of the Royal Flying Corps during the World War, and had not flown in the intervening eight years. His elation and enthusiasm at the strides that aviation had taken were unbounded. He was amazed at the progress of the profession, and at the marvelous instruments developed since the war that have made flying safe and certain.

The trip, made purely for business reasons, demonstrated unmistakably the great value of the Boston Airport. We landed here at 8:40 in the morning and had our cargo of dresses on display at the store at 9. I am convinced that the Boston Airport is superior to those of Hartford and New York, and I am certain that it will mean great things for the community when it is operating at full capacity, with complete and adequate equipment.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

This Newspaper

How YOUR Friendliness, Patronage and Support Have Influenced Circulation AND Advertising.

The most recent audit of newspaper circulation for the City of Boston, conducted officially by the Audit Bureau of Circulation, to which all reputable newspapers belong, discloses in the record established by The Boston Evening American in the evening field in Boston a totally unprecedented growth.

Never before in the history of newspapers in Boston has there been a newspaper which showed a GROWTH IN TWO YEARS OF 88,000 IN NET PAID CIRCULATION.

The "A.B.C." figures show a gain of 40 per cent., eloquent testimony to the swiftly growing popularity and acceptability of this type of newspaper.

We do not often sing our own praises in these columns, but this advance to a point of OVERWHELMING PREDOMINANCE IN THE EVENING FIELD OF BOSTON is so notable an achievement that we cannot refrain from commenting upon it.

The steady and stabilized character of this gain is convincingly disclosed by the figures of the NET PAID circulation by quarters.

For the FIRST quarter of the twelve-month period just closed the circulation of The American, net paid, according to the official audit, was 255,540.

For the SECOND quarter, it was 267,019.

For the THIRD quarter, it was 279,296.

For the FOURTH quarter, 305,461.

It is gratifying to note that, along with this swift progress in the CIRCULATION of The American, there has come a STEADILY INCREASING VOLUME OF ADVERTISING.

This is a natural accompaniment to so striking an increase in the number of readers, because, more and more, advertisers are seeking those mediums which can tell their story to the largest audience.

Mr. Hoover Comes

Speaks at Peterborough, N. H., on September 2nd

More than one gentleman who knows less than nothing about the gentle art of angling, who never donned old clothes and wading boots and whipped a pool or cast a feathered lure, will be feeling the call Peterborough New Hampshirewards, on or about Friday, September 2nd, when the Izaak Walton League opens a two-day convention there.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, one of the officers of the Izaak Walton League of America, is on the bill for one of the principal speeches and among the other guests will be Governor Huntley N. Spaulding, who has let it be known that if President Coolidge is not to be a candidate for re-election the Governor's choice is Mr. Hoover.

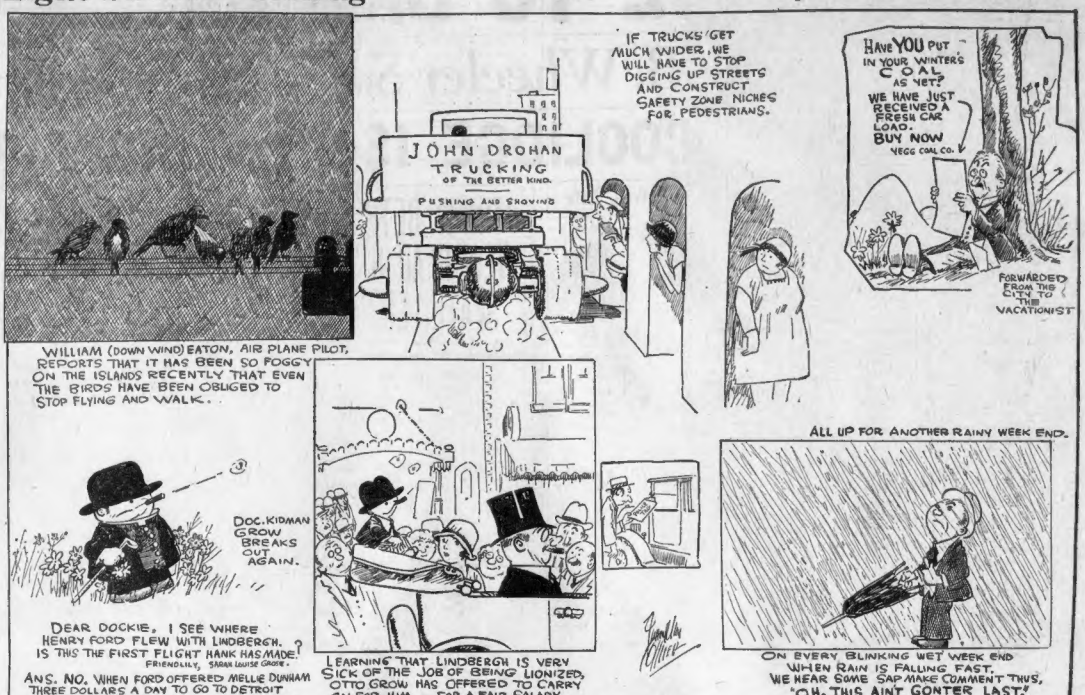

New Hampshire will be first of all the States, next year, to hold a presidential primary, leading the way on March 13th. Candidates for election as delegates to the National Conventions may file their declarations with the Secretary of State as early as January 12th.

Peterborough is worth calling on for any one of a number of reasons. It is the site of the MacDowell Colony, where creative artists are at work upon poems, novels, plays, songs and pictures. It is also the headquarters of the American Guernsey Cattle Club. The brick church was built from designs by the great Bulfinch.

This lovely residential town and manufacturing village in the valley of the Contoocook—31 miles northwest from Nashua—is one of the small northern New England towns which not only hold their own, but continue to grow. Peterborough boasts the "first free public library in America," opened in 1833. It contains 18,505 volumes, more than seven books apiece for the 2,615 persons who dwell here Winter and Summer.

The Sargent Camp—and that, too, is famous—is on Halfmoon Lake. This is where the Izaak Walton Leaguers will hold forth and where Mr. Hoover will be. It IS a long way to the National Convention, but Peterborough is deserving of a visit at any time and on its own account.

GIN A BAD LITTLE PLAYMATE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

YOU don't like to have your children play around with a bad boy. Even if he is doing pretty good at present you may not like his record.

With all the talk to and fro about the prohibition amendment we may be pardoned for observing that Mr. Gin is a bad little playmate.

It may do you no harm to take a snifter of gin once in a while. About that we shall say nothing. People have their opinions.

But we noticed the other day where one actor beat another one up in Hollywood and unintentionally murdered him. Both had been drinking heavily.

Gin may not have been the criminal, but he certainly was accessory to the crime.

When two people committed a particularly bloody murder recently in the East, they celebrated the occasion with a few drinks.

In almost all the cases of disorderly conduct in automobiles, gin is to be found in the hip pocket.

Courts may look with leniency upon those crimes where the perpetrator is befuddled with alcohol, but we notice that alcohol has a look in almost every time a particularly heinous crime is committed.

A famous moving picture star recently served a night in jail in Beverly Hills. It was the sequel to a wild party at his house, in which among those present was Mr. Gin.

He is usually an honored guest at most tragedies.

Youth may want its high jinks and resent our interfering with its pleasures, but we don't like their playing around with a knife with which father committed suicide. It shows a lack of feeling, to say the least.

The pathway of Mr. Gin has been so strewn with human wreckage, blasted reputations and women's broken hearts that he becomes a suspicious playmate.

To those who are looking for a good, short rule to observe in regard to bootleg, we can recommend the exhortation—D o n ' t.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Avoid argument with the verbose; power of speech is given to all; wisdom of mind to few. —Cato.

Education alone can conduct us to that enjoyment which is at once best in quality and infinite in quantity. —Mann

To be angry is to revenge the fault of others upon ourselves. —Pope.

Song forbids victorious deeds to die. —Schiller.

Eloquence may be found in conversation and all kinds of writings; 'tis rarely where we seek it, and sometimes where 'tis least expected. —La Bruyere.

Every great and commanding movement in the annals of the world is the triumph of enthusiasm. —Emerson.

We estimate great men by their virtue, not by their success. —Nepos

Were we as eloquent as angels we should please some men, some women and some children much more by listening than by talking. —Colton.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

JUST to do something different we asked Claude W. Bruce to let us look through his telescope. Bruce is a real astronomer, not one of the palmist "future predicted, success in love, marriage and business" type.

So when we looked through his Boylston street studio telescope one noon we saw the sun spots in clear manner. The sun looked green and inoffensive.

An astronomical telescope for celestial observation is about as large as a cannon. It is more complicated than a power house. With it the heavenly objects can be followed and photographed.

The Washington street auctioneer was becoming riled at his non-responsive listeners. He put up a silk shirt and was offered fifty cents. With a snarl he turned on his audience: "I suppose if I put up the building I might get a fifty-cent bid."

Those of the leisure classes who can travel across the ocean have a great variety of wardrobe trunks to use. There is the trunk with the doors and an assortment of drawers. It holds a dozen coat hangers on a sliding arm and has a radium clock. There are holders for shoes, shirts, jewels and hats. The entire interior is decorated, while the fittings are smoked silver. Such an equipment with clothes costs at least a thousand dollars.

Then there are the folks who simply must have a swanky ocean trip but have not much money. With care a trip to Bermuda or Savanna is their goal.

One traveler decided to come to Boston from Texas without paying. He simply stayed on the ship when it left Texas and was not discovered until too late. When the officers tried to make him work he refused. At last reports he had gotten a free passage.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

REMEMBER when the whole town started talking if Fred saw Ella home from the choir meeting? And you were as good as married if you took your girl buggy riding three Saturday nights running? Now listen to this:

Irene Harris and Raymond Hauger are going around the world together. "No, they're not married. Nor even engaged.

"Just good friends," they say. And they act the part.

Two husky, happy young people, both twenty-one, tramping along the highway, rejoicing over the world as it opens up before them, sharing both hardships and pleasures, encouraging each other during hard pulls, yet showing never a flicker of romantic interest in each other.

And how is the world receiving them? Is it regarding them with horror and suspicion? Is it penalizing them for their audacity? Not so you'd notice it. They left New York May 21 and arrived in San Francisco in June. Three thousand miles, but they only had to walk one hundred miles of it. For all the rest of the way people gave them lifts in hay carts or oil trucks, smart city cars or battered country flivvers. Wherever they went they were welcomed, liked and respected. They stayed as guests in respectable homes. They played with the baby and patted the pup and then went their way with scene of mother's gingerbread in their knapsacks. With one accord our sex-suspicious world has given them greeting and the right of way.

Makes you stop and think, doesn't it?

Right in the midst of our nervous uproar concerning Flaming Youth, two young people have quietly started out and proved that youth can combine for adventure with never a hint of flame or soot—and crash the gates with it!

As a matter of fact, Irene and Raymond are only doing on a larger scale what the great majority of our young people are doing every day of their lives right under our noses. Now and then some impetuous pair of youngsters stage an amorous explosion, but most of them use their liberty as sanely as Irene and Raymond are using theirs. "Weenie roasts" and "hitch hiking" parties, swimming contests, merry sunburned girls clinging to dusty swains on snorting motorcycles—all over Summerland the boys and girls are safely defying the old sex Taboos despite our pessimistic croaking.

But you can't stamp out sex, can you?

Of course, you can't stamp out sex. These youngsters don't pretend to stamp out sex. Irene and Raymond haven't pretended to stamp it out. But they have found that sex means something more than having Affairs. A girl's charm and a boy's strength—these things can be shared and enjoyed without disaster if we're clean minded and healthy bodied—and most of our boys and girls are enjoying them in just that way.

But won't all this casual association destroy the old mystery of sex?

Probably it will, and a good job it is, if it does. Why should sex be mysterious? Why should men be bewildered by women, or women be dazzled by men? Why shouldn't they take each other as freely and joyously as they take the sun and the wind and the stars? They should and they can. Irene and Raymond have proved it.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THE world moves on and who would say things would be better could they stay in their old grove of yesterday? Sometimes men turn with longing gaze to peer through by-gone seasons' haze, to glimpse the charm of other days. And for a little time they sigh at thought of youth and love gone by, when hopes were fair and hearts beat high. The world moves on, do wise men have the lure of days for which they grieve, the charms past hours can ever weave. For, as the world moves, so move they, new tasks arise with each new day, new dreams to dream, new plans to weigh. Loose, then, all things well-loved and gone, and turn to greet the waxing dawn with joy, because the world moves on!
